Karen Quinlan case before N.J. top court

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Seven justices of New Jersey's highest court took up the Karen Ann Quinlan "right to die" case Monday and some indicated they might be swayed by evidence that physicians make life-or-death decisions as part of a daily routine.

Karen's parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, asked the state Supreme Court to let their daughter die "with grace and dignity." Karen has been in a coma, her life sustained by a respirator, since last April 14 when she mixed tranquilizers and alcohol at a party for a friend.

The Quinlans want the court to grant them permission to remove Karen from the respirator. In October, the Quinlans failed to persuade a lower court to support them in their plea. Her doctors had refused their request to unplug the respirator, asserting that her brain is alive and she does not meet any of the medical standards normally used to declare a person dead.

When the oral arguments concluded, the justices gave no indication of when they might hand down a decision in the case.

The Quinlans' attorney, Paul Armstrong, was peppered with a series of questions on euthanasia — mercy killing — and the possible effects of a decision that would end Karen's life.

Is it ethical, the justices asked, for a doctor and family to decide not to start life-sustaining measures when a patient is terminally ill? Should a patient, such as Karen, be kept alive for 50 years if

Moslems, Christians retreat from Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem and Christian gunmen began withdrawing from Beirut's long-embattled streets Monday in what a Palestinian guerrilla leader said was "a real truce . . . the war is over."

Police said fighting was limited to shooting incidents between looters and Palestinian troops enforcing the cease-fire.

Police sources said five persons were killed, one of the lowest casualty figures for weeks in the nine-month war that killed more than 10,000 persons and wounded at least 21,000.

The joint Lebanese-Syrian-Palestinian truce committee reported the "demilitarization process" was progressing. Under the plan by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam, international highways have opened and all gunmen are to be off the streets by 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The state radio said all gunmen from both Christian and Moslem sides had withdrawn from the city by 10 p.m.

Lebanese security forces, including the army, began taking charge of roads although patrols of Palestine Liberation Army soldiers moved through western Beirut when thousands of citizens poured out of their homes to walk about in safety for the first time in months.

Palestinian guerrilla leader Zuheir Mohsen said of the Syrian-negotiated agreement between the warring factions: "This is not just another truce, but a real end to the civil war."

"The war is over," said Mohsen, head of the Syrian-backed Al Saeqa guerrillas. "I don't believe that anyone will be able to explode it again — not today, not tomorrow and not in the near or distant

Special election rejected

Name new trustee Feb. 5

by BILL HILL

A new trustee to fill the vacancy on the Arlington Heights Village Board created by Alice Harms' resignation last week will be appointed Feb. 5.

The village board last night rejected a proposal by Trustee David Griffin to conduct a special election April 3 and instead voted to meet Feb. 4 and 5 to interview applicants and receive input from village residents.

Residents interested in serving the 15-month term must submit applications to Village Pres. James T. Ryan or Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson by Feb. 3.

EMERGING AS A front-runner for the vacant trustee post Monday night was former Village Pres. Ralph Clarbour. Clarbour served as village president from July 1974 to April 1975.

Clarbour has remained active in village affairs as chairman of a special committee studying what role local government should take in social service agencies.

He was recommended by Trustee O. V. Anderson and three members of the audience.

Clarbour confirmed after the meeting that he will apply for the position. More to come.

Trustee Richard Durava agreed with Anderson that it is important to appoint someone with previous experience because of upcoming budget hearings.

"It would certainly be nice to get someone who could step right in, who has the background and has done the job before," Durava said.

CLARBOUR DREW praise from several residents, including Martin Cawley, who led a group of about 30 persons wearing black arm bands "in mourning for Alice (Harms)."

"Alice Harms loved Arlington Heights more than anyone in the village," Cawley said. "She would hate to see a divided board and the one way to heal it is to appoint someone of known value. Most people I've talked to favor Ralph Clarbour. He would keep the balance of board respectable."

The only other declare candidate for the trustee position is Walter J. Maczka, an unsuccessful candidate for the village board in April 1975.

Running independently, Maczka finished sixth among nine candidates. Four were elected.

The village board's meetings Feb. 4 and 5 will be open to the public. In the past, the board has filled vacancies after closed-door executive sessions without the names of unsuccessful candidates being made public.

Architect for police station sought

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson will ask the village's finance committee tonight to recommend hiring an architect to plan a new police station.

Hanson cited crowded conditions as reasons for the new building. "We've just outgrown our area. We can't go up. We can't go out. It's time to face reality," he said.

The police department has "more than doubled in size" since moving into the municipal building in 1962, Hanson said.

The proposed site for a new police station is immediately east of the municipal building on Sigwalt Street.

"The greatest need is for office space," Hanson said. "The chief doesn't have adequate quarters to get two people in there and be comfortable. There are no interrogation rooms. Part of the force has lockers downstairs and others are upstairs. And as many as four detectives are working out of one office."

Preliminary planning for a public safety building has been going on since 1970. In 1974, the village board's finance committee approved budgeting $96,000 for the planning of a new police-courts building but an agreement was never reached with Cook County Circuit Court over the use of the building. Subsequently, the hiring of an architect was never approved by the village board.

Dist. 25 studies figures to find deficit solution

Facts and figures concerning increases in class size, reduction in staff and building costs were presented Monday to Arlington Heights Dist. 25 board members to assist them in solving the district's financial dilemma.

The board will meet again next Monday as a committee-of-the-whole to discuss specific methods of offsetting a projected $3.9 million financial deficit by 1984. The deficit is caused by a severe drop in enrollment, which results in a decrease in state aid revenue. Enrollment is predicted to decline 31 per cent by 1984.

The administration presented three plans to the board Monday calling for an adjustment in the district's average class size of 25 students. The first plan would maintain the average class size at 24.3 students at the elementary grade level and would reduce staff by 17.7 employees next year. Figuring on a salary of $12,000 per staff member the district could reduce its salary expenditures by roughly $212,400, said Supt. Donald Strong.

According to the second plan, class size would be increased to 26.4 stu-

MARTIN CAWLEY and about 30 other Arlington Heights residents Monday night appeared at a special village board meeting wearing black arm bands "in mourning of Alice Harms," who resigned one week ago from the board. Meetings have been scheduled for Feb. 4 and 5 to interview applicants for the post.

dents, reducing staff by 43.5 employees, saving the district about $522,000 next year. The third plan calls for an average class size of 28.9 next year, reducing staff by 68.9, and generating a savings of about $826,800.

JAMES MODEC, president of the teachers union in Dist. 25 told the board about the teachers' concern over possible increases in class size.

"We, the Arlington Teachers Assn., most earnestly request the most careful, creative scrutiny of the present educational programs and of future adjustments before increasing class size, as we feel class size to be the most critical factor in a quality education for our children," said Modoc. "We urge the board of education to scrutinize thoroughly all financial expenditures in the district and consider them carefully in reaching any decision prior to considering the teacher pupil ratio."

Strong said there is no documented evidence that class size makes a significant difference in the quality of education. But in his opinion an average class size of more than 30 could crowd classrooms and possibly strain the ability of teachers to deal with each child.

"Especially with younger kids those early years are critical," he said. While there is evidence to show that students do learn the basic skills in large classes, gifted students and students with special problems may not get all the attention they need in a large class, he said.

THE ADMINISTRATION also presented the board with an analysis of the costs of operating and maintaining school buildings to determine what savings would occur if the board does decide to close some schools.

A review of the costs of utilities, supplies and custodial salaries shows that the district spends an average of $34,500 per year to operate an elementary school and an average of $82,200 to operate a junior high school.

The district has learned from legal counsel that it may lease a school building only to another public or educational agency and it may not lease school property to a commercial profit-making organization. The district could, however, sell a school to any buyer at a public auction.

Schaumburg chief probing fatal crash

Lloyd Abrahamson, Schaumburg Fire Dept. battalion chief, is investigating the circumstances of a fatal accident Friday night involving a village ambulance. The driver of the car, Walter Wisniewski, 69, of Roselle, was killed in the accident. "In my opinion, the chassis looks like it was hit by the car," Abrahamson said Monday, "but more investigation is needed." The incident, which resulted in $8,000 damage to the ambulance, was the second in the last 30 days in which a fire department vehicle was involved in a traffic accident. Last month, a fire rescue squad valued at $25,000 was wrecked in an accident. No one was hurt.

Skier takes a hard fall

It was the wrong time and the wrong place for a Hoffman Estates man who took a pair of skis to be repaired Sunday at a sporting goods store in the Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg. Jeffrey Ackermann, 20, of 356 Washington Blvd., walked into Herman's Sporting Goods about 2:35 p.m. to have his skis repaired. Police said he told store manager Bruce Endo he had purchased them for $30. Endo looked at the skis, recognized them and detained Ackermann for police, according to reports. Endo told police the skis were his and that they had been stolen Jan. 18 from the slopes at Wilmet, Wis. Police said the serial numbers on the skis matched those on the stolen skis. Ackermann was charged with possession of stolen property.

1,500 seek 2nd ice rink vote

Supporters of a second referendum asking voters in Palatine to approve the purchase of the Arlington Ice Spectrum, 647 Consumers Ave., Palatine, say they will present petitions containing more than 1,500 names to the Palatine Park District tonight. The park district board has said it will consider sponsoring a second referendum on the issue if it appears to have enough support in the community. Bruce Anderson, president of the Palatine Amateur Hockey Assn., said his group's petition drive has been under way for more than a month. A referendum, seeking approval for the sale of $696,000 in general-obligation bonds to finance purchase of the arena, failed in a July referendum by a 2-to-1 margin.

2 rob River Road gas station

Two men robbed the Gas For Less Station, 6101 River Rd., south of Des Plaines, at 10:15 p.m. Monday of $25 to $400 cash, Cook County Sheriff's police said. The robbers fled the scene in a late model, green Vega. It was not known if a weapon was used. Police were looking for two men, 18 to 21 years old. One was about 5 feet 9 inches tall and had curly hair.

No leads in mystery

Amy Doe finds a foster home

by JOE SWICKARD

The elevator doors opened and the television cameras and lights focused on the bundle in Margaret Cwik's arms.

Amy Doe was leaving Northwest Community Hospital Monday morning.

Arlington Heights Det. Mike Hogan and village nurse Helen Jensen were grinning as broadly as other parents with a newborn baby. Hogan and Mrs. Jensen were carrying the obligatory diaper and formula kits while Miss Cwik, head of the hospital nursery, cradled the child.

Amy began crying for the reporters — the same cry that saved her life Thursday night; she was less than 12 hours old then.

CHARLES REINHOLD entered St. Edna Catholic Church, Arlington Heights, to open the doors for choir practice Thursday night when he heard a baby's cry from a storage room. Inside the chilly 53-degree room was a child clad in a gauze diaper and wrapped in a terrycloth dish towel. Someone had placed her in a cardboard lost and found box.

Calls were placed to police and fire departments. The infant was rushed to the hospital, where it was pronounced in good health with strong lungs. Nurses named her Amy. Amy is a Caucasian child 19 inches long and 7 pounds 1 ounce in weight. She has blue-gray eyes and dark hair.

Her story appeared in The Herald Saturday, and by Sunday she was known to just about anyone who turned on a television or picked up a paper.

The Herald, the police and the hospital were flooded with calls from people wanting to adopt or aid her. But there was no word about Amy's mother.

Hogan said doctors, clinics and door-to-door inquiries have produced no leads to the child's mother. No tip has been fruit, he said. Police ask anyone with information about the child's identity to contact them at 253-2340.

MONDAY MORNING Hogan and Mrs. Jensen drove to the hospital to start Amy on her new life. The Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services had a temporary foster home waiting for her pending adoption proceedings. Adoption proceedings will take effect in 30 to 90 days if the mother does not come forward.

Stethoscope lecture for nursing staff

A lecture demonstration on lung auscultation, the art of listening to breathing with a stethoscope, will be held at 7 p.m. today at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, for members of the hospital's acute care nursing staff.

Sponsored by the Chicago Lung Association, the lecture will be given by Rita Froelich, director of staff development at Grant Hospital, Chicago.

Des Plaines hospital opens expanded lab

Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, has opened a new laboratory near the hospital's main entrance.

The new lab is three times larger than the old one and houses a blood center, microbiology unit and pathology offices.

The old lab will be renovated for an expansion of the hospital's X-ray department.

Mrs. Jensen cradled Amy inside the car so the camera men could see her off.

Before Amy was turned over to the custody of the state agency, there was a mandatory stop at the police station. The village receptionist announced over the public address system: "There will be a five-minute viewing of baby Amy Doe in the police station."

Once at the state's office in Chicago, Hogan received a shock. Amy was now, according to court documents, Joan Hogan. By filing child abuse petitions on her behalf, his name replaced "Doe" on the legal documents.

SUSAN BERNARD, of the department of children and family services, said the girl was the third infant abandoned in the northern Chicago area in the past 13 months. As in the other cases, the child was left where she was likely to be found.

"Churches aren't unusual. They are a traditional place of refuge and sanctuary," she said.

She said most abandoned children are older. They are left in vacant apartments, with babysitters, or just alone.

"They don't seem to realize there are people just waiting to help," she said.

School buses must be supplied to all: state court

The Illinois Supreme Court ruled Monday a public school district must provide transportation for public and private school students or lose state transportation funds.

The ruling involved Oak Forest Dist. 142, which has been denied state funds since the 1971-72 school year for failing to furnish transportation to non-public school students. State law requires public schools to provide transportation for parochial students, stating they are part of the public school citizenry.

Currently, a number of Northwest suburban school districts, which provide bus transportation to their own students, also provide for private pupils.

In the Oak Forest ruling, the court rejected the district argument that the state law is unconstitutional and violates the freedom of religion clauses, in the U.S. and Illinois constitutions.

The district also contended it was being penalized by the state board of education because it challenged the law.

The court said the state board was following another state law that says funds can be denied a district that fails, for any given school year, to maintain school as required by law.

The district was notified that it was jeopardizing its state funds by refusing to transport parochial students in 1969.

Economic report promises lower prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Monday the nation's economy is improving from the worst recession since World War II. He predicted more jobs and lower consumer prices in 1976.

"We are going to do better in unemployment. We are going to do better in the rate of inflation," Ford said. He then signed the annual report of his Council of Economic Advisers before sending it to Congress.

The President's report said inflation will remain at about 6 per cent through 1976 and unemployment will remain "distressingly high," although it will improve from the current 8.3 per cent rate.

Council Chairman Alan Greenspan said a sudden surge in inflation is the only thing that could untrack the economic recovery. "At the moment we see no evidence of price pressures beyond routine increases," he said.

Greenspan discounted any major inflation resulting from wage contracts for an estimated 10 million workers in 1976. He said less than 2 million workers might receive wage increases higher than 10 per cent, a number too small to have any serious impact.

In calling his report a recipe for "a firm, steady, long-range plan for reviving of the American economy," Ford said 1975 was "very tough" because "this country went through the sharpest, deepest recession since World War II."

Since the recession was at its worst in March, Ford said the number of Americans with jobs increased 1.2 million to about 85 million. He said the annual rate of inflation fell from 12 per cent in 1974 to 7 per cent last year.

But Ford said, "Even under the best of circumstances, the return to full employment cannot realistically be accomplished this year or next."

The report predicted further improvement in 1976. Food and energy price increases should moderate even more, housing construction should increase significantly, consumer spending should rise and the nation's total output of goods and services after adjustment for inflation should increase after the first back-to-back annual declines in 29 years.

But the report was cautiously optimistic and contained many warnings that attempts to overstimulate the economy through excessive federal spending would bring greater inflation and possibly more unemployment.

In other economic matters Monday, the Agriculture Department reported a typical American family paid a record average of $1,876 for farm-grown food in 1975, with 72 per cent of the $126 increase going to middlemen.

But department economists also offered some good news: food inflation during the first half of this year is expected to run only about half the 1975 rate — again, most of the increase due to increasing middleman costs.

The $1,876 "market basket" cost is computed on the basis of what a theoretical average household of 3.2 persons paid for a variety of farm-produced goods, averaged over the 12 months. The average in 1974 was $1,750.

The $126 increase, down sharply from the $213 leap the previous year, was divided into a $35 gain in average returns to farmers for market basket foods and a $91 gain in the middleman's spread which covers all costs and profits in handling and processing the foods.

According to the report, farmers averaged $783 for the foods they contributed to the market basket last year, compared with $748 in 1974. Middlemen averaged $1,093 for their services and profits in 1975 compared with $1,002 the previous year.

Department economists also said they have scaled down slightly their estimate of 1975 retail prices for all foods — a figure including items like fish and coffee, not included in the market basket.

'Trial of century' begins today for Patricia Hearst

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal judge Monday removed the last obstacle to start of the historic Patricia Hearst trial by rejecting a motion to dismiss the bank robbery charge on grounds the prosecution had not told a grand jury details of her "violent abduction."

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter cleared the way for jury selection Tuesday in the bizarre case of the 21-year-old heiress, accused of joining the terrorist acts of the Symbionese Liberation Army cult that kidnapped her.

One defense attorney forecast it would be "the trial of the century."

The brief arguments before Carter went to the heart of the prosecution and defense cases in a "show trial" expected to last two months or more.

Defense lawyer Albert Johnson told the court that the U.S. attorney's office had in its possession evidence about Miss Hearst's kidnapping which was "exculpatory" — that it provided an explanation why she might later have been terrorized into joining the armed bank robbery.

Johnson charged that evidence was not presented to the grand jury.

Carter broke into the midst of the attorney's remarks.

"Your argument would indicate that the grand jury is a body that determined guilt or innocence," Carter said. "It is not."

"It is a body with responsibility to determine whether there is sufficient evidence so that a person should be indicted for a criminal offense."

U.S. Attorney James L. Browning Jr., responding to Johnson, said the government never has and does not now consider the kidnapping of Miss Hearst to be "exculpatory" of her subsequent conduct.

"But there is no basis for the assumption that no evidence about the abduction was presented to the grand jury," Browning said. "I can assure the court that the evidence put before the grand jury was not all one-sided."

"The motion is denied," said Judge Carter. "Jury selection starts tomorrow."

Miss Hearst, looking frail and with dark circles below her eyes in a pale face, sat motionless and silent during the arguments.

Fifteen feet away, inside the wall of the basketball court-sized courtroom sat her parents, Randolph and Catherine Hearst, and her younger sister, Vicki. They smiled at each other and whispered inaudible pleasantries before the pretrial proceedings began.

A panel of 250 prospective jurors, the largest pool ever summoned in a federal trial here, was scheduled to be brought in Tuesday for the start of jury selection. It is expected to take about two days. The jury will be sequestered during the trial.

U.S. vetoes U.N. move to create Palestinian state

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United States Monday vetoed a Security Council resolution calling for the establishment of an independent Palestinian state in the Middle East and demanding Israel's withdrawal from all occupied Arab territory.

The vote was 9-1 with three abstentions. Britain, Sweden and Italy abstained and China and Libya refused to participate in the vote.

Under council rules, the lone U.S. negative vote killed the measure.

Before the vote on the resolution, sponsored by six non-permanent council members, the 15-nation group rejected a British effort to amend it to make it more acceptable to the United States.

The British amendment would have had the Council declare that nothing in the draft resolution superseded provisions of Resolutions 242 and 338, laid down as the basis of U.N. Middle East peace efforts after the 1967 and 1973 Arab-Israeli wars.

The vote on the amendment was 4-2, with Libya and China opposing it and France, Italy and Sweden supporting the British initiative. Nine affirmative votes are required for council approval of a measure.

U.S. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan told the council:

"The provisions that were before us were such that we considered the negotiating framework would have been altered in ways that would have been seriously harmful to the future of the peace-making process."

He said the State Department was issuing "at this very moment" in Washington a statement that "more completely sets out U.S. views on where this debate has left us in our search for a Middle East peace."

An Israeli spokesman said Israel "applauds the U.S. stand and sees in it an important contribution toward stability in the Middle East."

He reiterated the Israeli position that direct Arab-Israeli negotiations are the only way to achieve an overall settlement and called again for a reconvening of the Geneva Conference.

Moynihan said the U.S. veto "was not based on antipathy to the aspirations of the Palestinians," but rather on the conviction that passage of the resolution was not the best way to deal with the Palestinian issue.

Moynihan's negative vote was the 13th U.S. veto in the 30-year history of the United Nations.

Immediately after the vote, Secretary General Kurt Waldheim voiced fears of a renewed conflict in the Middle East.

"There are frustrations which undoubtedly will lead to further violence," Waldheim told the council.

"THE STAKES IN the Middle East question are now perhaps higher than ever and we soon will be facing new deadlines which . . . can only bring a new situation of crisis."

Court eyes Karen's death right medical advances permit it?

"Where do you draw the line?" asked Justice Morris Pashman. "Isn't this the same as euthanasia, whether you consider it active or passive? Isn't it death by a different route?"

"Why should it be a duty to continue a respirator if it fails mechanically? Why should there be any difference?" asked Justice Sidney Schreiber.

"And . . . if you decide to give treatment . . . you mean you can't change your mind . . . and stop it, given that the patient remains in a hopeless condition."

Armstrong told the court there was no doubt that Karen was alive. But he said she "is in a persistent vegetative state, she has irreparable brain damage, and she will die within one year. What we're asking the court to do is, not to kill her, but to allow the suspension of futile life sustaining measures so that her natural body processes can take place."

"Aren't you asking us to allow her to die?" asked Justice Mark A. Sullivan. "In future cases, where the patient's life is simply a nuisance to a family, wouldn't such a law leave the door wide open where it should be shut?"

The Quinlans sat quietly in the last row of the courtroom. They said afterwards they were "extremely pleased" by the persistent questions from the justices as to the "shades of difference" in their daughter's case.

Traffic jammed the Hamra Street shopping center and along the southern coastal road where street vendors set up stalls. The downtown commercial sector remained deserted, however, and only an occasional looter or a speeding motorist moved through the equally silent seafront by the gutted ruins of luxury hotels.

Reporters touring the area saw leftist gunmen still at their posts in the Phoenician Hotel and the St. Georges Hotel.

"We haven't been told to move out yet," one gunman of the Nasserite faction said at the St. Georges.

The Holiday Inn, a stronghold of the right-wing Phalangist Party, was deserted. This correspondent, slopping through water inches deep on the floor, turned up only two youthful looters carrying a bed through a side door. Shattered glass and mounds of twisted wreckage clanked underfoot and water from leaking pipes dripped everywhere.

Police reported Palestinian patrols had clashed with one group of looters at a supermarket, arresting three of them after smashing the Soviet rifles carried by the looters. Clashes involving looters also were reported from Tripoli, Lebanon's second largest city.

Colby: leaked CIA report 'totally biased'

William E. Colby, in probably his last appearance as CIA director, said Monday a House Intelligence Committee report leaked to the press was "totally biased" and the leak represented a "bursting of the dam protecting many of our secret operations and activities. The report showed the CIA, FBI and other federal intelligence agencies were spending as much as $10 billion a year, and were "beyond the scrutiny" of Congress. He said he did not know who leaked the report, but said it was up to others to find out. Ford said the release raised "serious questions" on congressional handling of security secrets.

Cambodians claim U.S. blocks repatriation

A group of Cambodians who want to return to their native land claimed in Philadelphia Monday the U.S. government was blocking their repatriation efforts. A United Nations representative, however, said the United States has agreed to let the Cambodians leave. Sam Ouern, spokesman for the self-proclaimed "Cambodian repatriates," told a news conference the U.S. government was trying "to tell us to live in the United States and wait until such time as we could aid in the counter-attack of Cambodia."

Senate OKs reservist call-up bill

The Senate approved legislation Monday giving the President power to call up to 50,000 selected reservists into active duty for a limited period of time without a declaration of war or a national emergency. The bill, passed 77 to 0 and sent to the House, specifically prohibits the reservists being used in cases of insurrection, for the enforcement of federal or state law, or for assistance in catastrophe, accident or disaster. The new call-up authority is separate and distinct from existing national emergency legislation.

State-run doctor insurance in California?

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. expressed concern Monday that a proposed solution to the slowdown by Southern California doctors facing a deadline on higher malpractice insurance rates Wednesday may cause financial problems for the state. A bill before the legislature would create a state administered liability insurance fund with $4,000 payments by doctors joining the pool. Brown said it was not determined what kind of deficit might build up for the state in future years if contributions by doctors remain limited.

Angola aid ban resolution sponsored

More than 200 House members co-sponsored a "sense of Congress" resolution Monday that would ban U.S. military aid to Angola. Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., one of the resolution's sponsors, claimed the resolution had support in high levels of the State Department.

In Angola, meantime, pro-Western forces established a "fight to the death" defense line to block an expected offensive against their central Angolan capital of Huambo by Marxist troops with Soviet-supplied armor and jets.

No comfort station at Ben Franklin home

• In this Bicentennial year, it's a relief to know that Benjamin Franklin's London home won't become a comfort station for British rail commuters. The Countess of Dartmouth said: "We've stopped all that nonsense, thank goodness." Franklin lived for 13 years, off and on, in Craven Street, which leads up from the River Thames in the heart of London. His house at No. 36 is almost unknown, although it is so close to Trafalgar Square that Franklin could have seen it even without his bifocals.

First step taken in condemnation of development

An ordinance declaring the $13 million Arlington Square apartment development a public nuisance has been approved by the Arlington Heights Village Board.

The project, formerly called Randhaven, at Rand Road and Ill. Rte. 53 is labeled "unsafe, unsanitary and hazardous" in the ordinance passed unanimously this week.

Approval of the ordinance is the first step in condemnation proceedings against the 318-unit condominium and townhouse development. A court order is now needed before the unfinished buildings can be razed.

"THE LAST THING we want is to have it torn down, but we can't allow it to remain any longer in its present condition," said Village Pres. James T. Ryan.

"I don't want us to stigmatize the project but we have no other alternative," he said.

Work on the project stopped in mid-July because lenders stopped advancing funds for the project, said Robert Keck, attorney for Plato Foulas & Co., developers of the project.

The village board originally considered the condemnation ordinance in December because of the empty, roofless buildings, an open and unprotected swimming pool and scattered refuse at the site.

THE BOARD postponed making a decision when Keck promised that the necessary improvements would begin Jan. 5. But agreements with a lender were not completed, Keck reported on that date.

Keck told the board this week that new problems with the lender had occurred. He urged approval of the condemnation ordinance saying "it may be the best way to get some results."

"We worked out the terms (for making improvements) but then found the lender was adding additional demands to which we could not comply," Keck said.

Michael King, attorney for the lender, said Keck's comment was "a misstatement."

"We have consistently been willing to provide funding for the project improvements. We agreed to $85,000 and then Foulas said costs had escalated to $125,000 and we agreed to that, too," King said. "We are still prepared to advance those funds to safeguard that property. If the board is willing, we are willing to give up to $125,000 to the village if the village is able to obtain a contractor to do the necessary work."

KING SAID HIS client was reluctant to hire a contractor because it might affect pending litigation by his client against Foulas.

"They are asking more of us than that. The big issue is whether we (Foulas) will have to repay the $125,000 out of our sales," Keck said.

Village Pres. James T. Ryan urged the board to pass the condemnation ordinance because of the pending litigation.

"I can envision this sitting here through this litigation. Let's bring the action right now. It's silly to play any more games," Ryan said.

Stock prices hit 26-month high

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite late profit taking, the new year rally pushed prices Monday to their highest level in 26 months in heavy New York Stock Exchange trading that pushed the record January volume figure over the half-billion-share mark.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up nearly 11 points in the afternoon, finished with a gain of 7.56 points to 961.51, placing the blue-chip average at its highest level since the Oct. 30, 1973 close of 968.54. The Dow, a 10.47-point winner Friday, has gained 109.10 points so far this year.

The turnover of 34,470,000 shares — the fifth heaviest on record — brought the total for the 17 days of the new year to approximately 508,083,950 shares. The previous monthly volume record was set in May, 1975, when 457,515,390 shares were traded. Friday's turnover totaled 33,840,000 shares.

GENERALLY, Monday's gain was broad. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 0.47 to 99.48, a 1975-76 high, and the average price of an NYSE share increased by 16 cents.

Advances routed declines, 1,019 to 554, among the 1,921 issues crossing the tape. The margin, however, had been wider during the afternoon.

Prices closed higher in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange. Volume totaled 4,210,000 shares, compared to 4,480,000 traded Friday.

$1.5 million loss foreseen

Dist. 214 opposes unit plan

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday night voted unanimously to oppose any effort by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to form a unit district.

The board learned Monday night that the district stands to lose about $1.5 million a year in state aid if a Dist. 59 unit district is formed. Administrators also told the board Monday they could not see "any advantages" for Dist. 214 if a unit district is formed.

Dist. 59 is in the midst of studying converting to a unit district in which one administration and school board would govern elementary and high schools. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in Dist. 214.

According to figures reviewed by the Dist. 214 board, the high school district would lose about 42 per cent of its tax base, about 27 per cent of its students and about $6 million in assets if a unit district were formed.

"I don't come up with any advantages for Dist. 214 if this (unit) district is formed," Supt. Edward Gilbert said. "We're being thinking and so far we come up dry."

Gilbert said not only would a unit district hurt them financially, but it would also cause "personnel problems."

"Most of our declining enrollment is in the remaining part of Dist. 214. We would have to decrease personnel more rapidly and in greater proportion," Gilbert said.

Board Pres. Eugene Artemenko, the only member of the Dist. 214 board from the Dist. 59 attendance area, said the impetus behind the Dist. 59 study is the "opportunity to increase their assessed valuation per student. If it were not to their (financial) benefit they wouldn't go ahead with the study."

ASSOCIATE SUPT. Robert Weber said depending on the tax rate that would be set for the unit district, Dist. 59 property owners and businesses could raise "the same amount of money at a lower tax rate" because they would have a high assessed valuation value per child.

"I haven't found any benefits (to Dist. 214) from a financial standpoint," Weber said. "Our figures show we would receive about $100 per student less in state aid and taxes than we could as we are now. That would amount to about $1.5 million less in available funds," Weber said.

Dist. 59 faces program cuts, deficit

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 faces program cuts and a deficit budget for next year, despite a tax rate increase approved by voters last fall.

After hearing financial projections for the next four years, the school board Monday discussed the need to work with a minimum $500,000 deficit next year and looked at possible program cuts to stay within this budget.

The board approved looking at a $500,000 deficit budget for the education fund next year and possible program cuts to meet this budget.

ARTHUR PERRY, district financial director, projected a deficit of as much as $2.3 million in the education fund next year, if the district faces an 8 per cent inflation rate and does not cut programs. The projection is based on expenditures of $12.3 million and revenue of about $10 million. The revenue figure includes about $1.4 million of borrowed money through tax anticipation warrants.

Perry also figured a cut in expenditures of about $200,000 for declining enrollment, and an increase of about $1.25 million in revenue, from the 25 cents per $100 valuation tax rate increase approved by the voters in September.

Perry figured the district could face an 8 per cent inflation factor, and accept a $500,000 deficit budget by cutting programs by about 3 per cent. The administration will outline the effects of this program cut for the board.

Perry projected deficits of $3.5 million for the 1977-78 school year and of $4.75 million for the 1978-79 school year, using an 8 per cent inflation factor and no program cuts.

"IN ABOUT THREE years, we'll have used up our borrowing power

Gilbert said Dist. 59 expects to have its unit district study completed by April and "we could conceivably be three months away from a hearing."

Gilbert said after the study is completed a petition to form the unit district must be presented to the county superintendent of schools, who will then hold a public hearing. A report of the hearing is sent to the state superintendent of schools who can call for a vote on the question.

"IT WOULD not serve us well to wait to come up with a decision from the Dist. 214 board on how we feel on this issue," said Artemenko. "If they think Dist. 214 doesn't care they will continue. If they think we are against it they might change their decision on this."

After the unanimous vote, Gilbert said the district would now move "in a formal fashion to oppose this effort."

"This board's concern is for all of the kids in the district," Gilbert said. "We are not mad at anybody in particular. We are acting in the best interest of the whole district."

Legal panel OKs ban on coin games

A ban on coin-operated amusement centers within the village has been agreed to by the legal committee of the Arlington Heights Village Board.

An ordinance banning arcades will not be drafted until decisions also are made on license fees and how many of the coin-operated devices should be allowed at one location.

Most Arlington Heights businesses with coin-operated machines have about five or six, but Arlington Park has about 20 and Pit 'N Pub has 17, according to Village Building Comr. Martin Munson.

A decision needs to be made on how many machines constitute an arcade, he said at last week's legal committee meeting.

THERE ARE ALSO no restrictions on where the machines are installed, Munson said.

"I think we agree that restaurants and bars can have these devices, but I don't associate them with grocery stores," said Trustee David Griffin, chairman of the committee. "I certainly wouldn't want to see any kind of arcade in downtown Arlington Heights. I don't think it would aid greatly the development of the downtown area."

Trustee O. V. Anderson recommended the village raise its fee on each machine from $30 to $100 per year. Anderson said, "If they want to have them, let them pay for it."

Griffin and Trustee August Bettman objected, saying $100 was too high.

A survey of ordinances on the devices in 10 other communities shows license fees range from $10 to $30, although a proposed ordinance in Evanston calls for a $100 fee per device.

IN BUFFALO GROVE no more than three devices are permitted at one business, and none are allowed in any "mercantile" buildings. Rolling Meadows has a limit of 20 machines per premise, and Evanston's proposed ordinance calls for a limit of six.

The Evanston proposal also restricts any person under 14 from playing the devices unless accompanied by a parent or guardian.

The Arlington Heights legal committee agreed the village's ordinance should not have an age limitation.

"I can't see putting on an age limit until we have a problem," Griffin said. "It would just give the police department another duty. I'm sure they don't want to go arrest a 13-year-old kid for playing a pinball machine."

Dog obedience classes

Class times are 8:30 p.m. for beginners and 7:45 p.m. for novices. The fee per dog for the nine-week session is $25.

For more information, call Pioneer Park, 394-4949, between 1 and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Panel expected to select plan for parking garage

Village officials are expected to select one of three alternatives for a downtown parking garage tonight.

A special committee on downtown parking, headed by Trustee August C. Bettman, will review three proposals prepared by village planner Joe Kesler.

The alternatives are:

- Four multi-level garages on village-owned land in the business district.
- A garage-office complex built above the railroad tracks at the site of the Chicago and North Western Ry. commuter station.

Kesler said once a choice is made by the committee, the village planning department will prepare detailed plans and cost estimates of the project.

The meeting is at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd. It is open to the public.

You can quit smoking before it's too late

by ROBIN FRAMES and MARK FURST

(Second of 10 parts)

Smoking is very satisfying to many people — there's no doubt about it. Otherwise 52-million Americans wouldn't be lighting up. At the same time, nearly everyone knows it's unhealthy and can lead to serious disease and death.

So if you're still a regular smoker, either you think it's too late to quit — "the damage has been done" — or else you want to quit but find it too difficult.

Yet 29 million Americans have managed to break the habit, and an estimated 25 million would like to. Many are now in the throes of quitting. A forest of new clinics and programs has grown up, using a wide variety of techniques.

SOME OF THE common sense approaches such as those taken by the American Cancer Society and by Walter S. Ross in his book, "You Can Quit Smoking in 14 Days" (Reader's Digest Press, New York), stress that smokers should not feel guilty about smoking, nor should they feel pressured to quit.

Ross, who stopped after 30 years of smoking one to two packs a day, says breaking the habit "isn't an act, it's a process. . . . You can teach yourself not to smoke, just as you taught yourself to smoke. Quitting is triggered by something that makes you think about it."

He emphasizes that the key to stopping smoking often comes through examining your habit in the light of your basic values and life goals.

IF YOU WANT TO give up smoking, you have your own personal reasons. Some people want to throw off the enslavement of an unwanted habit, rid themselves of tobacco smell and cigarette burns, save money or just feel better generally.

A few decades ago, smoking still was considered a socially acceptable pastime. Today the picture is quite different. Numerous studies have proven beyond any doubt that smoking is a foremost cause of lung cancer and other serious illnesses.

The British Royal College of Physicians has compared the lethal power of smoking to that of the great epidemic diseases such as typhoid, cholera and tuberculosis. The U. S. Public Health Service calls it "the foremost cause of preventable disease and death in this country."

SMOKING DOESN'T kill you right away, but each time you light up, you breathe in a battery of poisons, cancer-causing agents and other substances that attack your body.

One substance that you get less of when you smoke is oxygen. The sea-level smoker receives no more oxygen than a nonsmoker does at 8,000 feet. Pregnant women who smoke also deprive their unborn children of adequate oxygen. These mothers not only are more likely to have smaller, less-developed babies, but also more miscarriages and stillbirths.

One of the most serious health hazards of smoking is cancer. The tar in each cigarette contains about 30 cancer-causing chemicals. EACH YEAR THERE are about 93,000 cases of lung cancer in the United States, and 84,000 deaths. Most of the deaths are caused by cigarette smoking, according to American Cancer Society figures.

There are also other diseases which result from smoking. Among them is chronic bronchitis, characterized by a steady, hacking cough, and emphysema, which can doom its victims to years of gasping for breath.

Despite the nightmarish results of regular smoking, chances are that if you steadily cut down and eventually quit, you will notice a marked change in how you feel. Your smoker's cough will disappear and your general health will improve.

Unless an irreversible disease already has set in, your odds of dying from lung cancer and other diseases diminish as your time without cigarettes increases. Lung tissue damaged by smoking often can repair itself. In most cases, breathing becomes easier and you feel generally better once you stop smoking, regardless how long you have had the habit.

Weddings

Carol Hedeon-Timothy Pohlman

Two students at the Rush Medical Center in Chicago were married Dec. 20 in St. John United Church of Christ, Palatine, uniting Carol Elana Hedeon of Arlington Heights and Timothy Hurst Pohlman of Moline.

Carol, daughter of the Lawrence C. Hedeons, will graduate in June from Rush University School of Nursing, and Tim is a second year medical student at Rush Medical College. He is the son of the Joseph Pohlmans.

Prior to enrollment at Rush, Carol had two years at State University of New York-Cortland. Her husband graduated from Knox College and did graduate work at Washington University, St. Louis.

Jeanne Hague, W. Nyack, N.Y., was maid of honor for the 3:30 p.m. candlelight ceremony and Shannon Kearns, Wheeling, bridesmaid. Grant Bitter, St. Louis, was best man and Rich Hegg, Wheeling, groomsmen.

A reception for 100 guests was held at the Plum Grove Club, Palatine, and Carol and Tim then spent a week's honeymoon in California. Now back in school, they have an apartment near the medical center in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy H. Pohlman

Margaret Kelly-Vincent Mastandrea Jr.

In addition to the bride and groom there were 27 in the bridal party at the wedding Jan. 3 of Margaret Ann Kelly and Vincent J. Mastandrea Jr. Each had 11 attendants with a flower girl, ring bearer and three ushers completing the entourage.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kelly, Arlington Heights, Marge and Vince, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Mastandrea, Buffalo Grove, were married in a 5:30 p.m. double ring service in St. James Church, Arlington Heights.

Maid of honor was Julie Wagner, Arlington Heights, and bridesmaids were the bride's nieces, Colleen, Betty, Maureen and Cathy Kelly of Schaumburg, the groom's sisters, Lisa and Sandy of Buffalo Grove, Debbie Langner, Arlington Heights, Pat Durec, Streamwood, Christy Eberhart, Charlotte, Iowa, and Debby Danne, Westchester.

THE MAIDS AND the flower girls, Katy Langner, 6, Arlington Heights, were in apricot gowns and carried baskets of apricot carnations. Jeffery Durec, 5, Streamwood, was ring bearer.

The bride's princess gown was of white lace with long train and her long veil was trimmed in lace. She carried red roses with white carnations and baby's breath.

Serving as best man was William R. Stewart, Rolling Meadows, and groomsmen were Robert Stewart, the groom's brother, Terry, and Joe Colangelo, Buffalo Grove, Louie Rafonero, Wheeling, the groom's cousin, Peter Mastandrea, Lisle, the bride's nephews, Jim, Brian and Mike Kelly of Park Ridge, Chris Durec, Streamwood, and Daryl Eberhart, Charlotte.

Ushers were the groom's brother, Tim Mastandrea and the bride's brothers, Jim of Park Ridge and Tom, Schaumburg.

A RECEPTION FOR 300 guests was held in the Arlington Heights Elk Club.

Marge, a '74 graduate of Arlington High, attended Western Illinois University and is now employed as a nurse's aid at Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged in Arlington

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Mastandrea Jr.

Heights. Vince, a '73 graduate of Wheeling High, studied at Northern Illinois University and is employed as a salesman for American Racing, Elk Grove Village.

The couple, who met on a blind date three years ago, honeymooned in Florida and are now at home in a Wheeling apartment.

Marcia Eickenberg—Scott E. Harrington

Marcia Gail Eickenberg met Scott Edward Harrington when she was one of his pupils in an insurance class at the University of Illinois. A graduate of Fremd High, Marcia earned a B.S. degree in finance from the University, and Scott his B.S. and master's. He is now working on his doctorate in finance, and the couple, married since Dec. 27, are residing in an Urbana apartment.

The Presbyterian Church of Barrington was decorated in Christmas trees, red poinsettias and evergreens for the holiday wedding of Marcia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Eickenberg, Palatine, and Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Harrington, Rock Falls, Ill.

VICKI ROSS of Arlington Heights, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and maid of honor was Marcia's Kappa Alpha Theta sorority sister, Gail Boldt, Chicago. Bridesmaids were Jill Flanningham, Elmhurst, Casey Colnon and Anne Ackermann, Winnetka, also sorority sisters of Marcia. Best man was the groom's Delta Upsilon fraternity brother, John Springer, Peoria, and ushers were David Trower, Michael McLees and Frank Karl, Champaign, and Craig Johnson, Rockford, also Delta Upsilon.

The 5 p.m. double ring service was followed by a dinner reception for 150 at the Chateau Louise and a honeymoon in Florida for the newlyweds.

Several types of arthritis

I am interested in knowing how one contracts arthritis. Is this a hereditary disease? Is it caused by a low grade infection? How can one keep from getting this affliction?

There are several types of arthritis. Rheumatoid arthritis is inflammatory arthritis and the exact cause of the inflammation is not known. It has never been established that it is caused by a known bacteria or virus.

You can have gonococcal arthritis on the basis of gonorrhea, or tubercular arthritis from tuberculosis.

Gouty arthritis is caused by the accumulation of a salt of uric acid. The overproduction of uric acid in the body is an inherited tendency. Uric acid is a byproduct of normal cell regeneration which is a constant process in a healthy body.

OSTEOARTHRITIS or degenerative arthritis is thought to be related to wear and tear factors and affects mostly the weight bearing joints in the body.

As you can see from this, there is no good way to prevent all forms of arthritis, particularly when we don't know what causes some types such as rheumatoid arthritis.

As a general rule the principles of good health will help. Avoiding obesity decreases wear and tear on joints. Controlling the level of uric acid with medicines when it is too high will help prevent gouty arthritis and, of course, prompt treatment of the various infections that may have arthritis as a complication also helps.

For more information on arthritis send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 4-11, Rheumatoid Arthritis. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York N.Y. 10019.

My husband and I are on a limited income so I wonder if you could help me. I'm 5 feet 5 and 50 pounds overweight. The very word diet makes me hungry although I've tried to stay on one time and again.

Lately I have been experiencing a light-headed feeling (not always). Often dizzy spells are experienced not long after meals. Can these be high blood pressure symptoms? Do you have a diet to control it?

I wish I could just solve your problem with a letter, but it isn't that simple. You need to know exactly what is causing the dizzy spells. They are just a symptom, and they can be caused by a list of things as long as your arm.

Yes, you can have dizzy spells from involvement of the circulation related to high blood pressure. You can also have them from low blood pressure because not enough blood gets to the brain. They can be from severe anemia or from dieting, particularly from overdoing it with any number of unsound fad diets touted to the public.

Dizziness can be caused by the ears, the eyes and from anxiety so as you can plainly see I can't just send you a diet and relieve your problem. You will need to see a doctor and I think you absolutely must do this. Remember your health is your most valuable asset, so safeguard it above all else.

Pressing a hemline so there's no crease

Dear Dorothy: I am letting down hems and finding that certain hems are so abraded they look terrible. Isn't there a way to put in hems so that a dress isn't ruined because of the messed-up hemline when it's lengthened? — Jeanne Crider

Among many other talents, Janet Monroe is an accomplished seamstress. She taught me a thoroughly successful way of pressing hems so that you don't have to worry about worn-out hemlines when they have to be changed. Moreover, they're pressed so there is no shine on the right side.

Put a heavy piece of brown wrapping paper on the middle of the hem and cover it with a press cloth. Then use a steam iron to press it from the inside — not quite up to the edge of the hem, so it is not creased. This leaves a slightly rolled hem, as is the case on most better dresses. It's a break when one has to let down a hem and there's no sharp crease to worry about.

Dear Dorothy: Maybe this isn't the way to do floor stains, but it worked for me. A stain on the wood floor wouldn't wash off so I rubbed it gently with 0000 steel wool dipped in mineral spirits. The stain came off. Then I mixed tan shoe polish with a little paste wax, daubed it on, gave it a rub and the floor shows no trace of any stain. — Tania Shub

Dear Dorothy: I use tomato sauce mainly for seasoning. So, after opening a small can, I put the sauce in a container, freeze it, then take it out and cut it into cubes that equal a tablespoon and re-freeze. No waste and the seasoning is always handy. — Mrs. Jack Renick

Dear Dorothy: Is it true that storing nylon hose in the refrigerator or freezer makes them last longer? — Jen Winklip

No. Only thing that happens is that the nylons get cold.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 220, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60004.)

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Meier

Edwin Meiers celebrate 50 years of marriage

Lifetime area residents Edwin and Edna Meier, 1702 Myrtle Dr., Mount Prospect, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Jan. 4 with a dinner dance for 110 relatives and friends in Salt Creek Golf Club.

Edna, one of the three daughters of Louis and Martha Ottendorf, was born in Elk Grove; however, she was reared in Bartlett attending the Oak Glen Public School.

Edwin, one of the six children of George and Sophie Meier, was born on his parents' Mount Prospect farm and he and Edna have lived their entire married life in a home they built on the farm property. His parents' the farm is now the site of Colonial Heights.

EDWIN STUDIED at St. John Lutheran School, Mount Prospect, and he and Edna, married in St. John Church Jan. 6, 1926, are still members of St. John.

The couple has two children: Edwin Jr. of Crystal Lake and Arlene Brockman, Belvidere. They also have five grandchildren.

Although Edwin retired from farming some years ago, he helps his son with his Crystal Lake farm. Leisure time for the Meiers is spent bowling, motoring and playing cards.

Weekend in...

Chicago—A mini-vacation in the Windy City might help cure midwinter blahs with fun without sun

by JILL BETTNER

If the midwinter blahs are beginning to get you down, take the cure. Get away for awhile — pamper yourself.

The Caribbean islands are nice this time and every other time of the year, so are Acapulco, Hawaii and all the other glamorous vacation spots. Any of them will turn your disposition around, but could also turn your pockets inside out.

It isn't really necessary to take a long, expensive trip to improve your mood. Pack up and go away just for a weekend. A mini-vacation at one of Chicago's fine hotels could be just what you need to beat the doldrums.

SPEND A COUPLE of days in an elegant hotel, go out for dinner at some intimate little spot, have breakfast in bed and let somebody else wait on you for a change.

Besides relaxing and taking it easy, a mini-vacation in the city is the perfect opportunity to visit some of the sights you've been meaning to see for years and just haven't found the time. Take in the Art Institute, the Museum of Science and Industry, the Adler Planetarium or how about the Chicago Historical Society, the Field Museum of Natural History or the Shedd Aquarium.

If you've seen those, try some of the city's interesting, but less well known museums such as the Glessner House that houses a collection of Frank Lloyd Wright furniture, the International College of Surgeons with its exhibits of the history of medicine or the Chicago Academy of Sciences.

For an introduction to ethnic history, visit one of Chicago's many cultural museums including the Ling Long Chinese Museum, the Polish Museum, Du Sable Museum of African-American History and the Morton B. Weiss Museum of Judaica.

THERE ARE HUNDREDS of other things to see, too, such as Lincoln Park Zoo, Old Town, Navy Pier, Chinatown, the Merchandise Mart, the Pullman Community and Jane Addams' Hull House, to name a few. If you were there as a child, go back again and see it all as an adult. You'll appreciate the sights even more.

After the sun goes down, head for the north side and see what's new in New Town or have dinner in one of the recently opened Greek restaurants on Lincoln Avenue. There are still several good watering holes along Rush Street plus some great discos for learning the Pasadena Shuffle or other new line dances.

The Chicago Convention and Tourism Guide lists nine hotels that offer special weekend mini-vacations including the Bismarck, Blackstone, Conrad Hilton, Continental Plaza, Hyatt Regency Chicago, Palmer House, Pick Congress, Sheraton Chicago, Shearson Plaza and the Water Tower Hyatt House.

All the mini-vacations feature a grand tour of the city including the Loop and points of interest on the North Side, South Side and Lake Shore Drive. Also part of the package is a dinner at Don Roth's Blackhawk Restaurant, That Steak Joint or the Top of the Rock in the Prudential Building.

OPTIONAL TOURS available with the mini-vacation include the John Hancock Observatory; Sears Tower; Chicago After Dark, featuring a panoramic view of the city from the Adler Planetarium; Chinatown; and a gala nightclub tour beginning with a steak dinner and an old-time banjo revue.

Participating hotels offer both three-day, two-night and four-day, three-night packages. Rates range from $52.75 for twin accommodations at the Bismarck to $79.25 at the Hyatt Regency for the three-day, two-night vacation. Twin accommodations for the four-day, three-night package range from $63.50 at the Bismarck to $103.25 at the Hyatt Regency.

For additional information on Chicago mini-vacations, contact your travel agent.

'Friendly John' helps tourists find restrooms

It tells the reader where to find a restroom.

Just about every other need was anticipated by novelty makers and printers expecting millions of visitors. They made hundreds of thousands of Bicentennial posters, buttons, tape recorders, T-shirts, maps and earrings.

THE CITY BUILT a multi-million dollar pedestrian mall and placed "76" markers atop each streetlight. The National Park Service moved the Liberty Bell to larger quarters. Even police cars and paddy wagons were plastered with bicentennial stickers.

But city officials confessed one of their big problems was finding enough restrooms for visitors.

"Knowing where to find a bathroom is probably more essential than knowing where to find a restaurant or gasoline station," said William Hoover, publisher of "Friendly John." "The city couldn't just build bathrooms that would be obsolete in a year. So they should have talked to restaurant owners and published this book."

The city didn't. So Hoover, 48, a printer of Westmont, N. J., went to work.

"At the present time, there are simply not enough public facilities to handle the visitors," he said.

HOOVER AND SOME friends "got on the telephones and started calling around to owners of restaurants, hotels, taverns and business offices."

Hoover's booklet bears a $1 price tag. It lists where to find those "necessary conveniences." He said the owners of listed restaurants or theaters have agreed to be included in the booklet and promised to open their facilities to visitors who have a copy of "Friendly John."

Each name in this directory, from the small office to the large business establishment, has freely and willingly offered to the public the use of his "friendly john" or "restroom," Hoover said.

Hoover's booklet also lists historic places in the Philadelphia-southern New Jersey area as well as emergency police and fire department numbers. But its main feature is the list of 250 businesses which have restrooms available for visitors.

"After all," he said, "the most popular attraction at the Bicentennial may end up being a restroom."

Museum opens foreign visitor show

A new facility has been opened at Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry, especially for foreign visitors.

The center provides taped narration that accompanies a seven and a half minute slide program in nine languages — Spanish, French, German, Polish, Russian, Italian, Chinese, Japanese and Arabic — as well as English.

Admission and parking are free.

UNITED AIRLINES Capt. E. E. "Buck" Hilbert sits in the cockpit of the Swallow biplane before restoration began while a fellow antique airplane buff looks on. Hilbert will fly the plane from Pasco, Wash., to Boise, Idaho, this spring to reenact a flight made April 6, 1926. The flight marked the beginning of permanent scheduled airline service.

Old metal bird gets new feathers

A Swallow biplane that has a date with history April 6 is nearing completion at Seneca, Ill., about 60 miles southwest of Chicago.

The antique airplane is being restored to flying condition after resting in a garage loft in Chicago for the past 40 years. It is scheduled to reenact a flight made by Varney Air Lines from Pasco, Wash., to Boise, Idaho on April 6, 1926. The flight marked the beginning of permanent scheduled airline service in the United States.

The Swallow is being restored for its owner, E. E. "Buck" Hilbert, a United Airlines DC-8 captain, by Edward E. McConnell of Seneca. McConnell is a designated aircraft maintenance inspector for the Federal Aviation Administration and an aircraft restoration expert.

McCONNELL SAID the Swallow is about two-thirds completed and is expected to be flying by mid-February. The wings have been fully restored and covered and most of the framework of the fuselage has been finished and readied for covering.

Hilbert's Swallow has not flown since the 1930s and records of its early history have long been lost. It was owned in the early 1930's by five men, one the operator of a commercial auto garage in Chicago, and was damaged in a groundloop in 1934.

The plane was moved into the commercial garage for repairs, which were never made, and later up into the loft. Hilbert learned of its existence 10 years ago and tried unsuccessfully for that length of time to buy it, but until recently the owner wouldn't sell.

HILBERT, A RESIDENT of Union, Ill., will fly the re-enactment flight. He has done a lot of traveling to get parts for the Swallow.

He recently went to California to obtain an authentic Wright Whirlwind J-4 engine — which he was able to get by trading an equally valuable antique OXX-6 engine — then to Memphis, Tenn., where the engine was completely overhauled and on to South Bend, Ind., to get what might be the only existing J-4 engine carburetor in the world.

Hilbert also went to Iowa for the propeller, and to the states of Vermont, Washington, Kansas and New York to get needed engine parts.

WHILE MICHIGAN offers a lot of winter activities, Wisconsin's Telemark ski resort in Cable will conduct the nation's longest cross-country ski race Feb. 21 — the fourth annual American-Birkbeiner. More than 300 persons will participate.

Michigan to host a variety of snow galas in February

by JILL BETTNER

Nearby Michigan will be host for a variety of winter carnivals and festivals during February.

First on the schedule of special activities is the Michigan Tech Winter Carnival Feb. 1-7 at Houghton/Hancock, two villages that form the gateway to the popular North Country resort area of the Upper Peninsula.

Next will be the 51st annual Winter Sports Festival Feb. 6-8 at Grayling. The festival will be highlighted by a number of exciting events including a Klondike Canoe Race, Mutt Race, Knitted Mitten Contest and Snowshoe Races.

Another Michigan winter classic is Perchville USA, Feb. 13-15 at East Tawas on Lake Huron. This year marks the 26th anniversary of the carnival that will have among the events the annual Polar Bear Swim, blooper ball games and demolition derbies on ice and, of course, the opportunity for anglers to do some serious ice fishing.

OTHER FAMILY funfests on the February calendar include the Oscoda-AuSable Winter Carnival, Feb. 7 at McQuaig Park, AuSable; Hillsdale County Tip-Up Festival on Baw Beese Lake, Feb. 7-8 at Hillsdale; Winter Festival, Feb. 7-8 at Lake City; the Lake Superior State College Winter Carnival Feb. 12-22 at Sault Ste. Marie; Grand Island Classic and Winter Carnival, Feb. 13-15 at Munising; Tip-Up Carnival, Feb. 14-15 on Tip-Up Island, Marble Lake, Quincy, and a Winter Carnival Feb. 21-22 at Cedarville.

It's common knowledge that skiing and snowmobiling are Michigan's most popular winter recreational pursuits, and February has a lot to offer for enthusiasts in both sports.

The "really big race" in snowmobiling, Michigan's 1-500 at Sault Ste. Marie, is scheduled for Feb. 7. East Jordan will host the Twin 50 Snowmobile Race Feb. 7-8 and the annual Enduro Snowmobile Races are set for Feb. 15 at Houghton Lake. Two other musts for snowmobile fans are the World Snowmobile Games, Feb. 28-29 at the Gogebic County Fairground, Ironwood, and the National Snowmobile Hill Climb, Feb. 29 at Lake City.

On the ski slopes, Michigan offers two big events next month. First, the doubleheader Paul Buetla Memorial and National Ski-Jumping Tournament, both set for Feb. 23-24 at Suicide Hill, Ishpeming.

The second skiing event is the International Ski Flying Meet, to be conducted Feb. 26-28 at Copper Peak near Ironwood. Copper Peak is the only ski-flying hill in the western hemisphere and this year, top jumpers of the world will be attempting to break the hill mark of 482 feet set in 1975 by Jerry Martin.

For a complete listing of all February activities in Michigan, write for a free copy of the Michigan Calendar of Travel Events from the Travel Bureau, Michigan Dept. of Commerce, 300 S. Capitol Ave., Lansing, Mich. 48913.

Niagara gets facelift, tourist boom returns

by LeROY POPE

Niagara Falls, the country's top tourist attraction in the days before the automobile, is staging a comeback.

The city adjacent to the famous falls began a bootstrap and face-lifting operation in 1969. Much of its center had become a honky-tonk area and the city fathers finally decided just to knock it all down and restart from scratch.

They bulldozed 84 acres.

Since then they have built a new system of streets and lights; a $37 million convention center; a new 425-room hotel that is leased to a private group and managed by the Hilton chain; a new public library named for Earl Blyden, former majority leader in the state senate; a 1,500-car parking garage and a lot of ancillary facilities.

JUST RECENTLY, the city obtained a $1.7 million urban grant from the federal government that will enable it to carry out the final step of the program drafted in 1969 — building the 1,800-foot "Mall of the States," plus covered walkways and a winter garden linking the new convention center and the new Hilton Hotel with the falls themselves.

The rejuvenation already has brought more tourists to Niagara Falls in each of the last three years.

Curiously, it also has caused some revival of industry. Carborundum, Nabisco, Alcoa and other firms that have been in the city for years have enlarged their facilities and some firms have located in Niagara Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS has retained its most widely-known claim to fame. It still rates as the "honeymoon capital of America." Newlywed couples come from all over the east and much of the rest of the country and a surprising number still come to be married "at the edge of the falls."

The honeymoon business has been so brisk recently that a San Francisco group has bought the ancient, posh Hotel Niagara, which closed about 10 years ago, and is spending $7 million to refurbish it largely for the honeymoon trade.

The way we see it

Consolidation need seen

Consolidation of small elementary school districts into larger districts appears to be a viable option for local schools plagued by declining enrollment and budget deficits.

The smaller the school district, the more difficult it is for it to cope with severe drops in student population which results in an equally severe loss of state aid dollars. Small districts frequently lack a sufficient tax base to support the many services and specialized staff schools are mandated to provide.

Large districts also have their problems, yet they have more flexibility in moving students, changing boundaries and eliminating personnel than small districts have.

State education officials who encourage consolidation maintain consolidating districts also results in savings in administrative salaries and a more efficient use of buildings.

Mount Prospect Dist. 57 and River Trails Dist. 26, which serve portions of Mount Prospect and Des Plaines, are now holding informal talks on the possibility of consolidating or annexing one district to the other.

Dist. 57, with six schools, is projecting an $80,000 deficit this year. Dist. 26, with seven schools, anticipates it will go bankrupt before 1980. Both districts have fewer than 3,000 students each and are rapidly losing enrollment.

Should these two districts decide in favor of consolidation they can anticipate a strong reaction from the community they serve.

Historically, consolidation is greeted with protests, with some residents fearing loss of local control over their schools. Many people object to giving up the small, friendly atmosphere of their districts.

Although we can certainly understand such concerns, they don't outweigh the apparent dollar and cents benefits of consolidation.

The impact of consolidation can only be determined through a comprehensive study of finances, enrollment, facilities and staff. The Illinois Office of Education provides grants, consultants and information to school districts interested in tackling such a study so that the groundwork can conceivably be done at no cost to local districts.

We encourage Dist. 57, Dist. 26 and other Northwest suburban school districts facing the financial and enrollment squeeze to take advantage of this state assistance and investigate the pros and cons of consolidation.

Despite all of the current problems, the Northwest suburbs continue to offer high quality education. We would like to safeguard that education from erosion because of a lack of funds.

Consolidation seems like a logical direction to take.

Fire department facilities hit

Who is letting who down, Mr. Jones, village president? Who is working together as citizens of Palatine?

Our 1975 highlight, the fire department referendum, was broadcast far and wide as for firemen hired to be housed in existing facilities. Now citizens of Palatine read of the shortage of housing for these 28 additional firemen.

I want to know who lied. Was the referendum a bold-faced lie or is your newsletter a lie?

College tuition hike backed

The Illinois Board of Higher Education, by split votes, has recommended (a) in its tentatively approved Master Plan that by 1980 undergraduate tuition at the state's public universities be maintained at one-third of instructional cost and graduate tuition at 133-1/3 per cent of the undergraduate rates, and (b) in its proposed budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 that, as a first step toward these objectives, undergraduate tuition be increased $60 per year and graduate tuition $90 per year. The budget, which calls for an increase of $90 million or 11.7 per cent over the current fiscal year is predicated on the receipt of $11 million from these recommended increases in tuition, an amount which would fund 2 per cent in salary and price increases and about 25 per cent of proposed new and expanded programs of instruction.

These recommendations have caused considerable controversy. Those who oppose them cite the unlikely prospect of the governor and the legislature approving tuition increases in an election year and the financial difficulties faced by students and their parents in the current economic climate. While these may appear valid and reasonable positions

Smoker car brings lesson: all hacks aren't in a cab

I have recently been commuting via the railroad and shortly after my introduction to this mode of travel, I had the misfortune of selecting the "smoker" on my trip home. Being a non-smoker, having quit 17 years ago, I almost left the car, but then decided to endure the next 32 minutes. Almost immediately, I was aware of a difference between this car and the previous "no smoking" cars I had ridden in.

The difference was associated with the number of times people coughed or cleared their throats. Admittedly, this was a very subjective observation but subsequent observations on 15 additional trips at various times of the year produced similar results. People in the "smoker" coughed or cleared their throats at least two to four times more than those in the "no smoking" cars. There appears to be a smaller difference during the winter months and no noticeable difference on inbound (AM) or out-bound (PM) trains. This difference could actually be more dramatic since many of the riders in the "no smoking" cars are undoubtedly smokers. However, the reverse is probably not true since it is doubtful if many non-smokers venture into the "smoker" on a day-to-day basis.

Although much has been written about the ill effects of smoking, statistics show that public smoking habits have not changed appreciably. Statistics also show that severe health hazards exist for the smoker. Perhaps the above observation, which any smoker can easily perform, might provide a personal experience which might encourage a few more to stop.

Care center rated highly

This letter is to accentuate my gratitude for your series of articles concerning nursery schools, pre-schools and day care centers which appeared in your Herald in September 1975, and because of which, after investigating the points brought out in the articles, I have enrolled our four-year-old daughter at the Meadows Child Center, Meadows Baptist Church, Rolling Meadows.

The Meadows Child Center is quite unique in that instead of only being a "day care" center, it is a learning program. Children are given breakfast and lunch with morning and afternoon snacks in addition to the proj-the arguments for the increases seem to me more persuasive.

Let us consider them: (1) Inflation is the primary reason for these added costs and to fully fund them from general revenues will be very difficult, if not impossible. A tax increase would appear even more unlikely than an increase in tuition. (2) Those who are clearly unable to pay will be financed by grants from the Illinois State Scholarship Commission. This program is one of the most generous in the nation and eligibility standards are being constantly expanded. (3) There have been no tuition increases at our public universities during the past four years. During this same period tuition at most of the state's private universities has gone up at least $100 per year. These rates are, in general, four to six times as high as those in the public universities. (4) Incomes of most parents and working students have risen in this time span as a result of inflationary pressures. (5) It is essential that the quality of the programs at our state universities be maintained and improved and this means, among other things, that faculty and administrative salaries be kept at levels commensurate with those prevailing at comparable institutions elsewhere.

Surely these factors which, I believe, fully justify a tuition increase, deserve the thoughtful consideration of all concerned with this important problem.

Many helped in time of need

On Sept. 25, 1975, our home at 552 N. Williams Dr., Palatine, was gutted by fire.

I want to take this opportunity to thank all those responsible for turning our disaster into a livable trial.

First of all, praise and thanksgiving to a great, mighty and loving Lord and Savior Jesus who walked with us through the flames as He did with Shadrach, Meshah and Abed-nego (Dan. 3:25).

Our great appreciation goes next to the Palatine Fire Department and all the brave men who went into our home to fight the fire and finally put it out.

My special heartfelt thanks to the paramedics who administered prompt and efficient tender loving care to the burns on my face and the staff of Northwest Community Hospital.

Now to the cleanup crew: first to Jim Mazzanti, our insurance agent who saw to it that we had the proper insurance coverage and company; to the American States Insurance Company's Robert Hinton and all the concerned people there, and last, but not least Mr. Arnold Korshak of Custom Home Builders who is painstakingly putting our home back together.

May I thank you as I only know how, with prayers to God for the blessings of the Lord to be bestowed on each and everyone concerned for only He can repay such a large debt properly. May you know the Lord Jesus Christ as I do, as Lord and Savior.

Tribute paid to fire department

On Wednesday, Jan. 14, a mobile classroom used for storage purposes burned at the Twinbrook School in Schaumburg Twp. Dist. 54. The fire was extinguished very quickly by the Hoffman Estates Fire Department.

Public servants of our nation have received a lot of bad press in recent years for various reasons. Not until you are faced personally with a need for the services of these people do you realize just how dedicated they are to the health and welfare of the entire community.

Handicapped children given aid

I just want to express my thanks for the hospitality shown to a driver in distress.

I am a bus driver for Clearbrook Center, the non-profit organization dedicated to helping the handicapped in this area. Last Friday, the 9th, my bus broke down while I was transporting seven handicapped students from our workshop to their homes. Luckily I was close to Fire Station No. 3 and found shelter there.

Not only were we made welcome by the firemen on duty, but they went out of their way to make us comfortable. I needed to make numerous phone calls, notifying parents of the delay and arranging for alternate transportation and they cheerfully let me use their phone. Meanwhile the firemen helped make my students comfortable, even giving them a tour of the firehouse.

I can't say enough of these good gentlemen who helped turn what could have been a cold, distressing experience into an adventure for seven handicapped students. They are a credit to their profession.

Lack of sidewalks concerns reader

I am very concerned about the lack of sidewalks along Quentin Road leading to Fremd High School. Along Hunting Ridge there are sidewalks, until they mysteriously disappear along a well-traveled route by many children in the area.

Many people have expressed their concern about this, as those walking to Pleasant Hill School are affected too. Although my children attend Hunting Ridge School, and are as yet unaffected, I would not want them walking along such a busy route.

We recently moved from New Jersey, where by law sidewalks are mandatory along school routes. Is construction imminent or must something be done to correct the situation? Many concerned parents would like to know.

I can only sing highest praises of every other phase of life here in Palatine. It's one of the best run towns we've encountered yet.

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 27, the 27th day of 1976 with 339 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Venus.

The evening stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American pioneer labor organizer Samuel Gompers was born Jan. 27, 1850. This is actress Donna Reed's 55th birthday.

On this day in history:

• In 1880, Thomas Edison was granted a patent for an electric incandescent lamp.

• In 1943, the U. S. 8th Air Force staged the first all-American air raid on Germany, bombing Wilhelmshaven in daylight.

• In 1964, Maine Sen. Margaret Smith announced her candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination. She was the first woman to seek the presidential nomination of a major American political party.

• In 1973, the United States and North Vietnam signed a cease-fire agreement. Also that day, an end of the U. S. military draft was announced.

A thought for the day: President Abraham Lincoln said, "I claim not to have controlled events but confess plainly that events have controlled me."

Ask Andy

Hypnotism not really black magic

HOW DOES HYPNOTISM WORK?

To some of us, hypnotism is charged with mysteries and fearful secrets. We think of wizards and witches, casting their spells to help or harm their neighbors. In olden days, this magic worked only once in a while, usually for people who believed in wizards and such. Actually, modern hypnotism is a far cry from that old-time magic.

When you are alert and wide awake, your conscious mind can concentrate on present problems. You are aware of your surroundings. But sometimes part of the conscious mind wanders off in a daydream. You lose your sharp awareness, and when a friend asks a question you fail to hear. This state of absent-mindedness is somewhat like a mild form of hypnotism.

This simple example does not give the whole picture of hypnotism. Even a qualified expert cannot explain exactly how it works — or why it works only with certain people. But some doctors and psychologists know enough about it to use it to help some of their patients. The idea is to distract the patient's conscious awareness so that the hypnotist can talk with deeper levels of the mind.

Treatment begins when a patient is asked to submit to hypnosis. The hypnotist then suggests that the patient close his eyes, relax and sink into a deep sleep. If this succeeds, the patient is in a trance-like state. He is aware only of the hypnotist's voice and his suggestions.

Hypnotism often succeeds with a patient who is emotionally disturbed because he has tried to bury or forget some painful event of the past. The hypnotist helps him to recall the event, without its painful memory. Often such a patient sees his buried emotional upset in a new light — and recovers.

Hypnotism also is used to numb a patient's pain. Under hypnosis, his feelings obey the hypnotist's suggestions. He may go through an operation or have a tooth pulled without feeling a thing. This is helpful when a patient is too weak to stand an anesthetic.

Obviously hypnotism can be very useful in the field of medicine. However, the whole thing is full of bewares and only a qualified expert should ever try it.

Above all, let's beware of the non-expert who tries hypnotism as a sort of parlor trick. He may cure you of a bad habit. But chances are, you will pop up with another one that's even worse. His victim may fail to wake up from the hypnotic state — and a genuine expert must be called in to undo the damage. This sort of thing is embarrassing — and often, downright dangerous.

Andy sends a 2-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Bernard Lettington, 10, of Des Moines, Iowa, for his question:

WHICH PLANET WAS FORMED FIRST?

There are nine planets in the sun's family, and all of them belong to the same litter. They formed perhaps five billion years ago. Naturally, there was nobody around to take notes. But astronomers have a theory to explain how it all happened. It began when a stupendous cloud of dusty gases began to shrink. As it grew smaller, its scattered fragments crowded closer. In time they clogged together to form a huge ball of gases, surrounded by nine small chunks.

The ball of gases, of course, became the sun. The nine little chunks became the solid planets. They orbited around the sun, each at its proper distance. Then at last the sun's blazing furnace was set on fire — and the whole solar system was bathed in its light. Since all the planets were formed at the same time, they are all the same age.

TV's Sharon Gless a card shark

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — That cute blonde secretary to Robert Wagner and Eddie Albert on the "Switch" series is Sharon Gless, whose family pioneered California when it was part of Mexico.

Sharon is of basque origins and is a first cousin to actress Elizabeth Baur, who costarred for years on the "Ironside" series. They grew up together and are the closest of friends.

Their families came to Southern California more than five generations ago as land grant holders from Spain. There is a street in the old Mexican quarter of Los Angeles named Gless.

SHARON IS single and has lived for the past seven years in her apartment on the edge of a once-fashionable neighborhood in the Wilshire area.

Never married, Sharon is not domestically inclined, at least not for the present.

She does have what she considers to be the largest private collection of cook books in Hollywood, but she never has time to use them.

One of the reasons she isn't often found in the kitchen is her steady boyfriend of the past four years. He's a graphic designer several years older than Sharon who takes her to dinner five nights a week, then to movie screenings or tennis matches.

"WE HAVE no plans to get married," says Sharon. "Why ruin a good friendship?"

Sharon is too busy to continue her acting lessons, but she hasn't given up on ballet classes, which keep her in tiptop physical shape.

The youthful actress finds it necessary to stay in good health. She's up every working day at 4:30 a.m. to wash her hair. It is curled and dried at the studio when she arrives at Universal two hours later.

On weekends, Sharon is busy shopping, doing the laundry and all the chores. On Friday and Saturday nights she augments her income at friendly poker games.

It isn't uncommon for her to win as much as $40 at a sitting. Her boyfriend usually takes part in the games and seldom breaks even.

Profit gained by going set

The prime requirement for an opening bid is some high cards. Usually 13 or more high-card points and surely at least 11.

The prime requirement for a competitive bid is playing strength. Taking tricks, but not necessarily any high-card points. Some are necessary, but not 13 or 11. The normal minimum is seven.

Enough good reason to get into competition is to hold spades. If you have the spade suit you have an edge against all other suits in that your opponent will have to go one trick higher to take the bid away from you.

South holds a typical minimum spade overcall of East's opening heart bid. Seven high card points and a good six-card spade suit.

Win at bridge

North's jump to three spades is strictly competitive and South goes on to four spades purely as a defensive measure.

West doubles and with both black suit finesses wrong South is one down. Not a bad result since four hearts would wrap up.

Feld ballets all motion, but lack personal feeling

by LYNN ASINOF

Eliot Feld's ballets are pure motion. Like waves, they break over you and then recede only to engulf you again.

They create a sense of timelessness and movement and sometimes evoke emotion. But it is difficult to get close to a Feld ballet. Whether romantic or humorous, the pieces are impersonal.

Seeing one or two Feld ballets is fascinating, but three or four in one evening can be too much of a good thing.

Such was the case Friday when Feld's small 18-member troupe opened their three-day visit at the Auditorium Theatre. While the four ballets presented ranged in mood from playful to romantic, the quality of dancing was amazingly similar.

FELD IS FOND of large sweeping movements that double back on themselves as well as lightning quick footwork designed to dazzle. Essentially a chamber ballet company, there is little emphasis on solo virtuosity, and dancers usually move in anonymous groupings.

The program historically ranged over Feld's career as a choreographer. It included his first ballet, created in 1967 during his dancing days with the American Ballet Theatre, two of his best known pieces and a new work which premiered this fall.

The new piece, "Excursions," is a frontier-style ballet reminiscent of Agnes de Mille's "Rodeo." There is lots of galloping and horseplay to Samuel Barber's piano music. The horizontally striped backdrop evokes feelings of the Western plains, and the stage lighting puts the sun eternally on the horizon.

Clearly choreographed as a vehicle for company star Christine Sarry, "Excursions" is fast and spunky and down-home American. Miss Sarry skips, shimmies, kicks up her heels and even grinds a cigaret butt with her foot.

THERE IS A BIT of jazz in the piece and some humor as Miss Sarry and the other five dancers play cowboy. But I was more aware of the incredible speed of Miss Sarry's dancing than any sense of frontier spirit.

Mid-week review

The most successful piece of the evening was the liting and romantic "Intermezzo" set to Brahms music. With piano on stage, the three couples seem to awaken as the music begins. They dance with swirls, lifts and dips that melt into one another.

Each couple has its turn on stage alone. It is as if you are catching a glimpse of different love affairs as the dancers swirl around the dance floor.

The ending is like a music box winding down. The girls, cradled in their lovers' arms, are carried round and round and finally come to rest.

"THE CONSORT," another effective ballet, begins as a courtly Renaissance piece with courtiers attending their ladies. Soon, the ladies pin up their skirts and the courtiers open their shirts, and what was courtly becomes raw and lustful.

As the piece becomes more impassioned, the dancers adopt the traditional male-female roles with brutal force. The men clutch their women to them, legs around their waists, and the world seems to revolve around sex, work, war and childbearing. It is perhaps one of Feld's most powerful ballets.

"Harbinger," Feld's first ballet, opened the program. Like many of Feld's ballets, it seems to flow like water. In the fast sections, the dancers move like swirling rapids and slow down to wash over you in the quieter parts. It is playful and pleasing.

At 32, Feld has more than 20 ballets to his credit. Some like "The Consort" and "Intermezzo" have already become classics, and there is surely more to come.

Hopefully new works will reach below the surface of the motion Feld uses so well to touch emotion and round out his great talent.

Maier elected staff president

Dr. Kenneth J. Maier, Glenview, was elected president of the medical-dental staff at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, for 1976.

Dr. John O. Hanson, Winnetka, was elected vice president and Dr. Paul E. Birk, Glenview, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Maier is chief radiologist at Holy Family and was vice president of the hospital's medical staff in 1972-73. He also was chairman of the tumor conference for seven years and chairman of the nuclear medicine committee for three years.

Maier recently was awarded board certification in the Conjoint American Board of Nuclear Medicine. He is recognized as a certified specialist with special competence in the diagnostic, therapeutic and medical research uses of radioactive materials.

Camp and Travel Show motors to Arlington Park

The 8th annual Camping and Travel Show will officially launch the recreational season for area enthusiasts Friday, during a 10-day run at Arlington Park.

Over 250 recreational vehicles (RV) will be on display, making the show the largest selling exposition in the Midwest.

In addition to the full line of travel trailers, van conversions, fifth wheel units, truck campers, fold-downs, motor homes and mini-motors available for public inspection, the show also offers visitors an opportunity to plan their vacations and weekend get-aways. Campground owners' groups will be on hand to provide helpful information on their respective areas.

The exposition is sponsored by the Chicago and Recreational Vehicle Dealers Assn. which is anticipating sales comparable to the banner season of 1972.

"The vehicles on display will meet any purpose and pocketbook," a Palatine resident and Show Manager Bill Kervin said.

Camping trailers, which allow for easy towing and storage, will be available for under $1,000 while at the other spectrum, the luxurious motor homes demand a price tag of $30,000 and more.

In between are the popular van conversions which provide everything from bathing to bedding facilities in the range of $7,000 to $14,000.

Kervin's slogan, "Take a vacation from inflation in a vehicle designed for recreation," has been given special attention at the Camping and Travel Show.

"We find that campers are continuing to enjoy their vehicles even though they watch their mileage as fuel costs increase," the president of Master Campers, Inc. of Palatine said.

"They're taking more short trips, sticking closer to home, but using their vehicles just the same." The special travel and campout section will appeal to those who are planning trips in Illinois and neighboring states.

Camping accessories, backpacking equipment, mountain-climbing gear and related products will be on display to the more than 65,000 visitors expected to attend the show.

Weekday hours for the show are 3-10 p.m. Saturday hours are from noon to 10 p.m. The show will be open on Sunday, Feb. 1 from noon to 10 p.m. and Sunday, Feb. 8 from noon to 8 p.m.

Adult admission on weekdays is $1.75 and $2.50 on weekends. Children 6-12 are free during the week and $1 on weekends.

Maine West in 1st track win

The Maine West track team turned in several mid-season performances in winning its initial indoor meet of the campaign over Glenbrook North at the Maine South fieldhouse Saturday. The Warriors totaled 82 points and Glenbrook North scored 32.

West coach Ron Brown was pleased by the early sharpness of his Warriors. Senior long jumper Glen Watson shocked almost everybody with an effort of 21 feet 8 inches. Greg Klebe reached 6-0 in the high jump, and junior half-miler Jeff Brydges ran 2:01.

Glenbrook North pole vaulter Ron Ellwanger led his teammates with a vault of 13-6.

Maine West's versatile Scot Under captured the 50-yard dash in :05.6.

Mudders win women's title in Paddock tourney drama

When 5667 bowling pins are spilled by two teams during the course of a three-game series, one pin seems very insignificant.

Yet that one pin — whether it was the solid 10 on the perfect pocket hit, the one that wobbled and moved off center without falling during the spare conversion attempt or the one that was ignored during a split — proved to be the winning margin for the Mudders Women's League team in the 25th annual Paddock Bowling Tournament at Elk Grove Bowl Sunday.

Representing the Lexington Fillies league, the Mudders topped 2834 pins to edge Gladstone Realtors by the narrowest of margins... one pin.

The Mudders' winning performance earned the quintet of ladies a $387.27 reward while Gladstone's runnerup effort cashed $268.11.

For finishing third with a 2795 pinfall, Ed's Cheese won $193.63, the Bluebirds' 2790 total earned $148.95 for fourth, the Hoot Owls hit 2787 and $119.16 for fifth and the Sting 2784 pins and $104.27 for sixth.

Teddy's Liquors dropped 2753 and bagged $89.37 for seventh, Alley Cats and Fiery Four each buried 2747 for $67.03 and a tie for eighth and the Strike-outs hit 2745 for $44.68 and 10th. Try Harders blistered the lanes for a 927 opening game to win $15 for high game out of the money.

The key to the Mudders' success was marked consistency as all five bowlers recorded series within 39 pins of each other.

Shirley Fanslow paved the way with a 477 block including games of 152, 142 and 183. Evelyn Cleys contributed games of 160, 132 and 180 for 472. Arleen Eckert hit 125, 165 and 171 for 461. Ruth Busse added 149, 144 and 165 for 458 and Phyllis Sertzel capped the effort with 188, 138 and 112 for 438.

The 2306 actual pinfall, when added to the squad's 528 handicap pins, equalled the magic 2834 winning total that also brought a team and individual trophies.

The runnerup Gladstone Realtors quintet included the hot hand of Louise Lawrenz who just one day earlier had rolled 589 to pace the Hi Lows team to the championship of the Paddock Mixed League Tournament and a $200.82 payday.

Lawrenz made it an even more profitable weekend by spearheading Gladstone's scoring with games of 158, 191 and 193 for a 542 series. Teammate Bonnie Hofbauer was right behind with 541, Marilyn Andersen hit 520, Dale Smart 504 and Judy Kramkowski 453 toward the team total of 2833.

Complete team and individual results in both the mixed tournament and women's event appear elsewhere in this section.

Rolling Meadows to host girls' volleyball tourney

The best girls' volleyball teams from the Northwest Suburbs will be matched up at the Rolling Meadows Super-Sectional tonight at 7:30.

It promises to be a spirited contest because it's a rematch of the North Suburban Conference champion Barrington Broncos and the league runnerup Libertyville Wildcats.

The winner will meet the winner of the Oak Lawn Richards Super-Sectional at the state tournament in Normal this Friday.

Barrington advanced by capturing the Buffalo Grove Sectional. Libertyville marched through the Glenbrook North Sectional, defeating powerful Forest View and defending state champion New Trier East on successive nights.

Libertyville also reached the super-sectional level last year before losing to New Trier.

Tickets for tonight's match are $1.50 for adults and $1 for students with identification cards.

MOSTLY HIGH. The Hi Lows, representing the Friday Night Frolics League, left their low scores at home Saturday while winning the Paddock Mixed Tour-

North, South tangle; Hersey visits Elk Grove

While the major leagues are moving closer and closer to interleague play, the Mid-Suburban League is moving away from the concept.

Tonight's basketball clash between visiting Hersey and host Elk Grove (8 p.m.) will be only the ninth such confrontation between teams of the MSL's North and South divisions.

A revision of the league's schedule meant fewer crossover games for each team this season — games that don't count in the standings, either. Teams in the two divisions are getting to be complete strangers.

So for the first time since the league moved to divisional play six years ago, each division has developed its own character and style. And plenty of arguments have ensued over which division is superior.

South-division teams have won five of the first eight crossovers, including three in a row and five of the last six. Hersey (12-4), the North's second-place team will have a chance tonight to close the gap against the South's third-place squad, Elk Grove (14-4).

Hersey, one game behind Buffalo Grove in the North, and Elk Grove, which trails Schaumburg by two in the South, are both maintaining hopes of catching the leaders in their respective divisions.

In the only other area contest scheduled for tonight, Wheeling (8-8) will entertain Libertyville at approximately 8 p.m.

Hawk icemen even record at 3-3

The Harper Hawks took two of three hockey showdowns over the weekend to even their season record at 3-3.

Goalie Mike Mattox kicked away 25 shots Thursday to key a 2-0 Harper win over Morton. John Karras flipped home the only goal the Hawks needed, getting an assist from Mark Santelli. Randy Voss took a Jim Hoss pass with the three seconds left in the game and pushed in the final goal.

Harper ran into a whirlwind Saturday, facing a team of high school all-stars by the name of the Junior Cougars and falling 12-2.

Karras got both Harper goals, assisted by Santelli and Ron Halle.

Mattox was back in form Sunday night as he turned back 33 shots to pace Harper's 4-1 win over Triton.

Triton was 9-2 going into the game but two goals by Santelli and single markers from Mark Gustafson and Swan Oberliad shackled them with their third loss of the season.

Harper will make a run at a winning record Saturday, Jan. 31 when they host Sinclair Shores (Mich.) at the Randhurst Ice Arena beginning at 8:30 p.m.

JIM OTIS drops the ball as he is hit hard by ARFC defensive tackle Curley Culp in the first half of the Pro Bowl Monday night in New Orleans.

Hoosiers tie record; Illini win in upset

Indiana tied a Big 10 record for consecutive conference wins and Illinois won in an upset in basketball Monday night.

Scott May scored 32 points and Bob Wilkerson 21 to lead top-rated Indiana to an 88-73 win over Iowa, to tie the Big Ten consecutive win mark of 27.

The unbeaten Hoosiers, winners of 47 consecutive regular season games, led 43-39 at the half en route to tying the league mark set by Ohio State in 1960-62.

Meanwhile, in Champaign, Rich Adams' tip-in of a missed free throw by Nate Williams with 38 seconds to play Monday night provided Illinois with a 76-75 upset victory over Michigan in a Big Ten conference game.

It was the second loss in eight Big Ten starts for the 14th-ranked Wolverines and left them two games behind unbeaten Indiana in the Big Ten chase. Illinois earned its third win in eight Big Ten games.

At Purdue, Terry Furlow, who scored 31 points, hit a 20-foot jump shot with 18 seconds to play Monday night to put Michigan State ahead for the first time and give the Spartans a 66-65 victory over Purdue.

Furlow uncorked a 26-foot jumper from the right side of the key over Purdue's 1-3-1 zone defense after the Spartans used up almost two minutes to set him up.

Eugene Parker's desperation shot from the left baseline just before the final horn bounced off the front of the hoop.

NFC whips AFC in Pro Bowl

Philadelphia's Mike Boryla, who made the Pro Bowl game only because of injuries to several other National Conference quarterbacks, rallied the NFC to a 23-20 win over the AFC Monday night, hitting Mel Gray of St. Louis with the winning pass from eight yards out with 69 seconds left in the game.

The AFC appeared to have the game wrapped up when it took a 20-9 lead on a 90-yard punt return by Billy "White Shoes" Johnson of the Houston Oilers midway through the fourth period.

But Boryla brought the NFC back to its second straight triumph in this series by first hitting Terry Metcalf with a 14-yard scoring pass and then finding Gray with the winning throw two minutes later.

Boryla was chosen to back up St. Louis quarterback Jim Hart after both Fran Tarkenton of Minnesota and Roger Staubach of Dallas had to withdraw from the game because of injuries.

Pistons fire head coach Ray Scott

The Detroit Pistons fired Coach Ray Scott Monday and named assistant coach Herb Brown to replace him.

The principal owners of the National Basketball Association club met with Scott during a practice session at suburban Southfield High School. Scott returned from the meeting to the practice floor, spoke briefly with the players, wished them well and departed.

A spokesman for the club said owners took the action "because there was a communications breakdown," and because it would be "in the best interests" of the team for Scott to leave.

Brown will serve as head coach for the remainder of the season, the spokesman said.

Scott was in the second year of a three-year contract. The owners said financial terms of the contract will be fulfilled.

Goolagong advances in Slims

Evonne Goolagong, seeded third in the $75,000 Virginia Slims Chicago tournament, coasted into the second round Monday night with a easy 6-2 6-2 triumph over Linky Boshoff.

Two other seeded players, fifth-seeded Nancy Gunter and sixth-seeded Francine Durr, also advanced.

Goolagong appeared in top form as she broke Boshoff's service in the third and fifth games of each set.

She rarely was caught out of position and rushed the net at every opportunity to keep Boshoff scrambling to make returns.

Three named to football hall of fame

Three football greats, Ray Flaherty, Jim Taylor and the late Len Ford will be inducted July 24 into the football hall of fame.

Flaherty first an outstanding end at Gonzaga College, played with the New York Yankees and New York Giants of the NFL in the 1920s, and 1930s, twice receiving all-NFL honors.

He then became head coach of the Washington Redskins for 11 seasons, winning the NFL title in his second season and building up a cumulative 80-37-5 record. Nine of his 11 teams had winning records.

Taylor, the power runner from Louisiana State who helped Vince Lombardi's Green Bay Packers dominate football in the 1950s, followed the late Lombardi as the second enshrined from these powerful Packer teams.

He totaled 8,597 yards rushing for his career, second only to Jim Brown; trails only Brown with 83 rushing touchdowns; and holds the NFL record of rushing for 1,000 yards or more in five straight seasons.

Ford, a defensive end from the University of Michigan and one of the stars of the Cleveland Browns' dynasty of the 1950s, died in 1972 at the age of 46. His widow Geraldine is now a municipal judge in Detroit.

He was a virtually unanimous All-Pro for five seasons and played in four Pro Bowls during a stretch when the Browns won divisional or league championships in seven of eight years.

Spending limit newest wrinkle

Political fund hustle going strong

by STEVE BROWN

As candidates criss-cross the state and the country looking for votes, their backers also are hustling, looking for something nearly as important as votes in American politics — money.

Election '76 is no different, except for a few new wrinkles in the form of disclosure and spending limit laws. The new government regulations have taken campaign financing out of the dark ages and some political pundits are bemoaning the fact that the new laws are making the money harder to find.

But an informal survey of early fund-raising efforts indicates the candidates are getting the money they need to finance their campaigns.

IN THE STATE'S hottest campaign, the governor's race, the Democratic candidates are playing cat and mouse over how much they are collecting. Gov. Daniel Walker's aides say they still are compiling information, while Sec. of State Michael Howlett has released a partial list of contributors.

In comparison, the Republicans are telling a lot about their money situation. James R. Thompson is releasing information daily. He has received about $400,000 so far. His opponent, Richard Cooper is using a slightly different fund-raising technique.

Instead of squeezing dollars from the people, Cooper wrote himself a $500,000 check from his $10 million fortune to finance the primary campaign.

ELECTION

In another race, the hotly contested Republican primary in the 10th Congressional District, new federal laws have thrown a wet blanket over what has been a real dollar derby for the past four years. In 1972 and 1974, U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva and Samuel H. Young spent over $400,000 each in the two races.

THIS YEAR, the candidates are limited to spending about $70,000, plus their fund-raising expenses in the primary and an equal amount in the general election.

A survey of the three candidates in the primary indicates Young has collected about $20,000 and plans a direct mail appeal. Daniel Hales has collected about $30,000. State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Glenview, who entered the race after the other two, said he has about $11,000 pledged to his effort.

Only Nimrod indicated his campaign budget was under the legal limit. He admits he can raise only about $50,000 in the primary. Both Young and Hales indicate they will attempt to raise and spend the limit in their campaigns.

In another race, Democrat Joanne Alter, who is seeking the nomination for Lieutenant governor has a $150,000 budget. She said she has collected about $15,000 so far.

MANY CANDIDATES and their managers are looking to direct mail appeals for money in 1976. Sophisticated efforts, like those mounted by Robert Viguerie, Alabama Gov. George Wallace's mail man, are good for about $300,000 and can be tapped every two weeks.

The money-raising campaign Ronald Reagan is using is bringing in about $200,000 per week and a major share is coming from direct mail appeals.

Presidential candidates are being both helped and hindered by the new election spending laws. Individual contributions can be for no more than $1,000, but for the first time the candidates are tapping the federal campaign fund for contributions.

The funds, which have given some candidates more than $1 million, are keeping some campaigns alive.

BUT EVEN with the federal money, some candidates are out looking for money everywhere — including Illinois. Even with the hotly contested races here, some presidential candidates who have made only a minor Illinois effort are hoping to "export" some cash from the state to be used in other parts of the country.

U.S. Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., has attracted the help of Angelo Geocaris, who is noted for his fund-raising ability. Geocaris's initial effort was a small dinner for Udall, which garnered about $25,000.

U.S. Sen. Birch Bayh, who like Udall has only a few delegate candidates in the Illinois primary, hopes to grab a few checks from a fund-raising luncheon on Jan. 30 in Chicago. Bayh doesn't plan even to try to attract any public exposure from the trip, because his luncheon is closed to the press.

SOME CANDIDATES have expressed concern about having enough money. Even the most well-financed candidates get edgy towards the end of a campaign and start looking for places to throw a few more dollars, in hopes of getting their names in front of the people.

They also are worried about the perennial primary problem, people keeping their money in the bank until the end of the campaign or after waiting to see who will win.

So while the dollars seem to be rolling in now, the candidates are keeping their fingers crossed that their efforts to build name recognition and support will keep the cash coming until March 16, at least.

Social Security benefits available to old, disabled

Some area residents who might be helped by the Social Security supplemental security income program have not applied for benefits, said Norman Jerome, manager of the agency's Arlington Heights office.

Under the supplemental security income program, monthly payments are made to people who have low incomes and those who are age 65 or older, blind or disabled. The amount of the payment depends on other income the recipient has.

Approximately 350 people receive the payments in the area served by the Arlington Heights office. For more information contact the office, 120 W. Eastman.

Karen Quinlan case before N.J. top court

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Seven justices of New Jersey's highest court took up the Karen Ann Quinlan "right to die" case Monday and some indicated they might be swayed by evidence that physicians make life-or-death decisions as part of a daily routine.

Karen's parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, asked the state Supreme Court to let their daughter die "with grace and dignity." Karen has been in a coma, her life sustained by a respirator, since last April 14 when she mixed tranquilizers and alcohol at a party for a friend.

The Quinlans want the court to grant them permission to remove Karen from the respirator. In October, the Quinlans failed to persuade a lower court to support them in their plea. Her doctors had refused their request to unplug the respirator, asserting that her brain is alive and she does not meet any of the medical standards normally used to declare a person dead.

When the oral arguments concluded, the justices gave no indication of when they might hand down a decision in the case.

The Quinlans' attorney, Paul Armstrong, was peppered with a series of questions on euthanasia — mercy killing — and the possible effects of a decision that would end Karen's life.

Is it ethical, the justices asked, for a doctor and family to decide not to start life-sustaining measures when a patient is terminally ill? Should a patient, such as Karen, be kept alive for 50 years if

Moslems, Christians retreat from Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem and Christian gunmen began withdrawing from Beirut's long-embattled streets Monday in what a Palestinian guerrilla leader said was "a real truce . . . the war is over."

Police said fighting was limited to shooting incidents between looters and Palestinian troops enforcing the cease-fire.

Police sources said five persons were killed, one of the lowest casualty figures for weeks in the nine-month war that killed more than 10,000 persons and wounded at least 21,000.

The joint Lebanese-Syrian-Palestinian truce committee reported the "demilitarization process" was progressing. Under the plan by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam, international highways have opened and all gunmen are to be off the streets by 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The state radio said all gunmen from both Christian and Moslem sides had withdrawn from the city by 10 p.m.

Lebanese security forces, including the army, began taking charge of roads although patrols of Palestine Liberation Army soldiers moved through western Beirut when thousands of citizens poured out of their homes to walk about in safety for the first time in months.

Palestinian guerrilla leader Zuhair Mohsen said of the Syrian-negotiated agreement between the warring factions: "This is not just another truce, but a real end to the civil war."

"The war is over," said Mohsen, head of the Syrian-backed Al Saika guerrillas. "I don't believe that anyone will be able to explode it again — not today, not tomorrow and not in the near or distant future."

To avoid freight crossing tieups

Firemen plan rail alert signals

The Des Plaines Fire Dept. plans to install signaling devices to alert firemen when railroad crossings along the Chicago and North Western Ry. outer belt tracks are blocked by freight trains.

Fire Chief Donald Corey said the signals will help minimize delays to side vehicles enroute to emergencies. Stopped or passing freight trains block the city's major east-west streets numerous times each day.

"To date the trains have not created any real serious problems," Corey said. "But the signals will keep us from losing time unnecessarily."

HE SAID THE SIGNALS, which will be connected to the fire department's communications map, will show which railroad crossings are blocked and indicate the direction in which a train is moving.

"A light will go on to show which crossings are blocked and the direction of the train so we can go to a crossing that is clear," Corey said.

The city has received permission from Chicago and North Western Ry. officials to install the signals, he said, and is working out details with the telephone company. He said he hopes the devices will be installed in about a month.

Corey said freight trains have not caused serious problems because the fire department has stations on both sides of the railroad tracks.

"THERE'S ALWAYS A chance there will be a delay, but that's why we have station three on the west side of the tracks," Corey said. "We bount on the crossings being blocked most of the time and respond from more than one station."

Engineers hired by the city have said traffic is stopped at the outer belt tracks six out of every 30 minutes because of stopped or passing freight trains.

The arrival of firemen Friday to the scene of an industrial accident in which a man was killed was delayed by about three minutes because of a stalled freight train. Corey said, however, the delay made no difference.

The man, Dennis A. Welk, 19, of R R 1, Lake Zurich, was killed when he fell to the bottom of a gasoline storage tank near Wolf Road and Thacker Street. He apparently died of asphyxiation from breathing the gasoline fumes.

POLICE CHIEF ARTHUR Hintz said freight trains have delayed some police vehicles, but they are not a major problem.

"We don't have the kinds of problems that the fire department has," he said. "In most cases we have cars on both sides of the tracks, but on occasion we will get caught if all the cars are over assisting someone on the one side of the tracks."

Hintz and Corey said an overpass or underpass at one of the city's east-west streets would help reduce delays caused by freight trains. "There's no doubt that it would be a good thing," Corey said.

City officials have debated for several years whether to apply for federal funds for a railroad underpass or overpass at the outer belt tracks. They have considered Thacker Street, Algonquin Road and Oakton Street as possible sites, but have not acted because of opposition from residents and businesses along those streets.

Ruling seen today on Wolf reinstatement as fire deputy

Circuit Court Judge Edward F. Healy is expected to rule at 10 a.m. today on whether to reinstate David Wolf as deputy fire chief in the Des Plaines Fire Dept.

Wolf was a 23-year veteran of the fire department until last July, when city officials said he resigned. He has filed a lawsuit to regain his $22,400-a-year position on the fire department, saying he never resigned that post.

The issue centers on a controversial "resignation letter" of June 8, 1975, from Wolf to Fire Chief Donald Corey. The letter was written after the chief told Wolf he had been relieved of duty pending the filing of misconduct charges. Officials have not said what the possible misconduct charges were, but Corey testified he planned to ask the city's fire and police commission to fire Wolf.

WOLF'S ACTIVITIES outside the fire department apparently were a source of disagreement between him and Corey. Wolf said he offered to resign his position as chairman of the city's Bicentennial and Historic Landmark commissions or as deputy chief of the fire department.

Wolf, however, has testified that the letter was only an offer to resign one of the two posts, and not an actual letter of resignation.

Corey has testified that he asked for a formal letter of resignation from Wolf, but never received one. He said he then accepted Wolf's offer to resign as a resignation from the fire department.

Wolf said the city's fire and police commission has refused to grant him a reinstatement hearing.

Dist. 59 faces program cuts, deficit

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 faces program cuts and a deficit budget for next year, despite a tax rate increase approved by voters last fall.

After hearing financial projections for the next four years, the school board Monday discussed the need to work with a minimum $500,000 deficit next year and looked at possible program cuts to stay within this budget.

The board approved looking at a $500,000 deficit budget for the education fund next year and possible program cuts to meet this budget.

ARTHUR PERRY, district financial director, projected a deficit of as much as $2.3 million in the education fund next year, if the district faces an 8 per cent inflation rate and does not cut programs. The projection is based on expenditures of $12.3 million and revenue of about $10 million. The revenue figure includes about $1.4 million of borrowed money through tax anticipation warrants.

Perry also figured a cut in expenditures of about $200,000 for declining enrollment, and an increase of about $1.25 million in revenue, from the 25 cents per $100 valuation tax rate increase approved by the voters in September.

Perry figured the district could face an 8 per cent inflation factor, and accept a $500,000 deficit budget by cutting programs by about 3 per cent. The administration will outline the effects of this program cut for the board.

Perry projected deficits of $3.5 million for the 1977-78 school year and of $4.76 million by the 1978-79 school year, using an 8 per cent inflation factor and no program cuts.

"IN ABOUT THREE years, we'll have used up our borrowing power and will be faced with selling working cash bonds, issuing teachers orders or going to the voters for a tax increase," Perry said.

The administration has recommended that the board consider a $500,000 deficit next year, which would allow for a 4.5 per cent inflation factor and no program cuts.

"I think an 8 per cent inflation figure is more realistic," said board member Avis Wold. "If we're going to stay around a $500,000 deficit, we're going to have to face some cuts somewhere. I want to know what this means to the programs."

She said the district should "explore all alternatives, so our decision will have some accountability and credibility."

Board member Emil Bahnmair said, "I don't think we should say we can't maintain our standards" with program cuts. "We're going to have to look at our programs by their cost effectiveness."

Board Pres. Judith Zanca said she is "willing to live with a deficit, but we should set a deficit limit for every year."

County hospital urges board to boost land taxes

by WANDALYN RICE
Officials of the Cook County Hospital Governing Commission asked the county board Monday to increase property taxes by 5.5 cents per $100 assessed value to help finance hospital operations this year.

The request conflicts with the avowed intention of County Board Pres. George W. Dunne to avoid a tax increase. The request immediately ran into hostile questioning from Dunne and other members of the county board.

The hospital governing commission runs Cook County Hospital, Cermak Memorial Hospital in the county jail and Oak Forest Hospital. Hospital officials estimate 3 per cent of the Cook County Hospital patients come from the Northwest suburbs.

DR. JAMES HAUGHTON, executive director of the commission, said the tax increase is needed because Gov. Daniel Walker is holding up state payments for the hospital's welfare patients and because the commission has finished collecting payments owed from 1966 to 1970, amounts which have provided the hospital extra revenue in past years.

"Our governor seems to think he can save money by not paying the bills," Haughton said. He said the state currently owes the hospital $14.8 million in money on patients it has approved and has not yet approved payment for an additional 6,000 patients whose bills total about $12 million.

Haughton said the state appears to be prolonging the process in approving a patient's bill by insisting on verifying all information on the financial condition of the patients. In addition, he said only 60 per cent of the patients the hospitals asks be accepted for public aid payment are eventually approved by the state.

County board members said they sympathize with Haughton's problem, but said they do not want to raise taxes. Suburban Comr. Mary McDonaid said, "I don't see how we in good conscience can recommend a tax increase to cover money that the state owes you."

HAUGHTON SAID even if the state pays the $14.8 million it owes on approved patients immediately, the hospital would still need a tax increase. The reason, Haughton said, is since 1971 the county has been collecting payments, mostly from the federal government, that have been owed the county since 1966. Those funds have now been collected, he said, and cannot be counted on for additional revenue this year.

County board members zeroed in on a line-by-line scrutiny of Haughton's budget, a budget they cut by $8.5 million last year. Mrs. McDonald said she is upset because the governing commission did not cut its budget in the places the county board recommended last year. The county board has no power to make line-item cuts in the budget, but can make recommendations to the governing commission.

Haughton said the governing commission did not adopt all the county board's recommended cuts because "some of them were impossible." He said, "Pres. Dunne has said he doesn't want this board to have line-item control of this budget, but what you did last year came perilously close to that. Either the hospital governing commission is going to run the hospital or the county board is."

Areas recommended for cuts last year, which were once again singled out this year, include the staff which seeks grants for the hospital, the "industrial relations" staff which negotiates union contracts and the number of architects employed in the hospital's building department.

One cut recommended by the board last year that has been made in this year's budget is the elimination of an associate director of public affairs, who was paid $41,844 a year.

Stock prices hit 26-month high

NEW YORK (UPI)—Despite late profit taking, the new year rally pushed prices Monday to their highest level in 26 months in heavy New York Stock Exchange trading that pushed the record January volume figure over the half-billion-share mark.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, up nearly 11 points in the afternoon, finished with a gain of 7.56 points to 961.51, placing the blue-chip average at its highest level since the Oct. 30, 1973 close of 968.54. The Dow, a 10.47-point winner Friday, has gained 109.10 points so far this year.

The turnover of 34,470,000 shares — the fifth heaviest on record — brought the total for the 17 days of the new year to approximately 508,063,950

shares. The previous monthly volume record was set in May, 1975, when 467,515,390 shares were traded. Friday's turnover totaled 33,640,000 shares.

GENERALLY, Monday's gain was broad. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 0.47 to 89.48, a 1975-76 high, and the average price of an NYSE share increased by 16 cents.

Advances routed declines, 1,019 to 554, among the 1,921 issues crossing the tape. The margin, however, had been wider during the afternoon.

Prices closed higher in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange. Volume totaled 4,210,000 shares, compared to 4,460,000 traded Friday.

$1.5 million loss faces Dist. 214 in unit school plan

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday night voted unanimously to oppose any effort by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to form a unit district.

The board learned Monday night that the district stands to lose about $1.5 million a year in state aid if a Dist. 59 unit district is formed. Administrators also told the board Monday they could not see "any advantages" for Dist. 214 if a unit district is formed.

Dist. 59 is in the midst of studying converting to a unit district in which one administration and school board would govern elementary and high schools. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in Dist. 214.

ACCORDING TO figures reviewed by the Dist. 214 board, the high school district would lose about 42 per cent of its tax base, about 27 per cent of its students and about $6 million in assets if a unit district were formed.

Charity drive raises 95% of $48,000 goal

The Des Plaines Community Chest has raised $45,600 or about 95 per cent of its 1975-76 goal of $48,000.

The drive, which will benefit 13 local organizations, is being conducted in conjunction with the annual Crusade of Mercy campaign. Donations to the drive should be mailed to the Des Plaines Community Chest Inc., P. O. Box 204, Des Plaines 60017.

The drive raised $46,551 last year, about $2,800 more than its goal.

Organizations that will benefit from the drive are: The Salvation Army; Service Unit and Community Counseling Service; Des Plaines Girl Scouts; Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls; Clearbrook Center; Northwest Suburban YMCA; and USO Inc.

Other groups that will benefit are the Northwest Suburban Homemaker Service; Northwest Suburban Aid for the Retarded; Maine Center for Mental Health; the Rimland School for Artistic Children; Des Plaines Police Boys Club; and the Northwest Suburban Day Care Center.

"I don't come up with any advantages for Dist. 214 if this (unit) district is formed," Supt. Edward Gilbert said. "We've been thinking and so far we come up dry."

Gilbert said not only would a unit district hurt them financially, but it would also cause "personnel problems."

"Most of our declining enrollment is in the remaining part of Dist. 214. We would have to decrease personnel more rapidly and in greater proportion," Gilbert said.

Board Pres. Eugene Artemenko, the only member of the Dist. 214 board from the Dist. 59 attendance area, said the impetus behind the Dist. 59 study is the "opportunity to increase their assessed valuation per student. If it were not to their (financial) benefit they wouldn't go ahead with the study."

ASSOCIATE SUPT. Robert Weber said depending on the tax rate that would be set for the unit district, Dist. 59 property owners and businesses could raise "the same amount of money at a lower tax rate" because they would have a high assessed valuation value per child.

"I haven't found any benefits (to Dist. 214) from a financial standpoint," Weber said. "Our figures show we would receive about $100 per student less in state aid and taxes than we could as we are now. That would amount to about $1.5 million less in available funds," Weber said.

Gilbert said Dist. 59 expects to have its unit district study completed by April and "we could conceivably be three months away from a hearing."

Gilbert said after the study is completed a petition to form the unit district must be presented to the county superintendent of schools, who will then hold a public hearing. A report of the hearing is sent to the state superintendent of schools who can call for a vote on the question.

"IT WOULD not serve us well to wait to come up with a decision from the Dist. 214 board on how we feel on this issue," said Artemenko. "If they think Dist. 214 doesn't care they will continue. If they think we are against it they might change their decision on this."

Markworth, Schultz, Wells

Three Dist. 207 officials to retire

Three top level administrators in High School Dist. 207 will be retiring at the end of the school year after a combined total of 68 years in the district.

Harold Markworth, business manager; Merlin Schultz, coordinator of pupil personnel services; and Robert Wells, Principal at Maine North High School, will leave the district this June.

Markworth, 63, came to Dist. 207 in 1952 as a business education teacher. He has watched the district grow from one high school to four and from less than 1,200 students to almost 12,000.

MARKWORTH BECAME the district's business manager when the position was created in 1945 and has held that post since then.

Markworth said the biggest change he has seen other than the district's size has been "the change in teachers' salaries," he said. "When I came here teachers started at $1,200. Now it's up to $10,000."

Markworth said the change in pay reflects the changing role of the teachers. "The whole philosophy of the value of teachers has changed."

Markworth said he plans to stay in the area, become more active with church work and travel.

WELLS, 58, WILL be moving to Albuquerque, N. M. following his retirement. He said it is part of a "six-year plan that started when my wife and I bought some land near Albuquerque."

Wells has been with Dist. 207 since 1942 when he came as a math and science teacher. After teaching at Maine East High School for 17 years, he was assistant principal at Maine West High School for eight years.

He came in on the ground level with the planning of Maine North, where he is currently principal. For two years he served as administrative assistant to the superintendent where he helped design the newest high school.

"That was my biggest challenge since I've come to the district. It was a great opportunity to start from scratch and follow the planning and construction through to the opening of the school," he said.

"I wouldn't have missed this experience," he said.

He said the one thing that has remained consistent throughout his 34 years with the district has been "the community support and excellent education Dist. 207 has come up with."

SCHULTZ, 60, CAME to Dist. 207 when his current position was created in 1963. He had previously served as a guidance counselor in Grosse Pointe, Mich.

Schultz said he has "seen a lot of change in the past 13 years. We've changed as society has changed."

Under Schultz's guidance, the district has set up a counseling system in all the high schools and has expanded the services of psychologists, social workers and nurses in the schools.

He said he would like the district to work toward getting "more student input. It's a long tough road to fight but students have a lot to contribute. Often they are the last ones asked. I'd like to see students in on the ground level in the decision making."

Schultz said he does not have any definite plans for retirement. "I've spent my whole life planning so I plan to stop all that."

Hospital parking on zoners' agenda

Des Plaines officials tonight will consider a request by Forest Hospital for a zoning variation allowing expansion of its parking facilities to a residential area along Rand Road.

The request will be considered by the zoning board of appeals at 8 p.m. at the Des Plaines Civic Center, 1420 Miner St.

Michael Richardson, city director of planning and zoning, said the hospital, 565 Wilson Ln., has proposed putting parking lots on four tracts that it owns. The lots are at 1771, 1796, 1800 and 1840 Rand Rd.

June Bengtson, hospital public relations director, said the hospital does not plan to alter the houses on the property.

Richardson said the zoning variation can be granted or denied by the zoning board, and will not come before the city council.

In recent years, city officials have denied two zoning changes to Forest Hospital because of opposition from residents. Richardson said he is uncertain whether the hospital's latest request will meet the same opposition. Last July, the city council reversed an earlier decision and voted to deny a rezoning request by the hospital for property at 666 Garland Pl. Forest Hospital officials wanted to purchase the land and use an office-warehouse complex there for offices, a vocational rehabilitation program and a post-graduate study program.

In 1972 the city council rejected another request by the hospital to rezone the Des Plaines Funeral Home, 1717 Rand Rd. The zoning change would have allowed the hospital to establish an adolescent treatment center and supervised workshop for the handicapped on the site.

Karen Quinlan case before N.J. top court

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Seven justices of New Jersey's highest court took up the Karen Ann Quinlan "right to die" case Monday and some indicated they might be swayed by evidence that physicians make life-or-death decisions as part of a daily routine.

Karen's parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, asked the state Supreme Court to let their daughter die "with grace and dignity." Karen has been in a coma, her life sustained by a respirator, since last April 14 when she mixed tranquilizers and alcohol at a party for a friend.

The Quinlans want the court to grant them permission to remove Karen from the respirator. In October, the Quinlans failed to persuade a lower court to support them in their plea. Her doctors had refused their request to unplug the respirator, asserting that her brain is alive and she does not meet any of the medical standards normally used to declare a person dead.

When the oral arguments concluded, the justices gave no indication of when they might hand down a decision in the case.

The Quinlans' attorney, Paul Armstrong, was peppered with a series of questions on euthanasia — mercy killing — and the possible effects of a decision that would end Karen's life.

Is it ethical, the justices asked, for a doctor and family to decide not to start life-sustaining measures when a patient is terminally ill? Should a patient, such as Karen, be kept alive for 50 years if

Moslems, Christians retreat from Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem and Christian gunmen began withdrawing from Beirut's long-embattled streets Monday in what a Palestinian guerrilla leader said was "a real truce... the war is over."

Police said fighting was limited to shooting incidents between looters and Palestinian troops enforcing the cease-fire.

Police sources said five persons were killed, one of the lowest casualty figures for weeks in the nine-month war that killed more than 10,000 persons and wounded at least 21,000.

The joint Lebanese-Syrian-Palestinian truce committee reported the "demilitarization process" was progressing. Under the plan by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam, international highways have opened and all gunmen are to be off the streets by 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The state radio said all gunmen from both Christian and Moslem sides had withdrawn from the city by 10 p.m.

Lebanese security forces, including the army, began taking charge of roads although patrols of Palestine Liberation Army soldiers moved through western Beirut when thousands of citizens poured out of their homes to walk about in safety for the first time in months.

Palestinian guerrilla leader Zuheir Mohsen said of the Syrian-negotiated agreement between the warring factions: "This is not just another truce, but a real end to the civil war."

"The war is over," said Mohsen, head of the Syrian-backed Al Saja guerrillas. "I don't believe that anyone will be able to explode it again — not today, not tomorrow and not in the near or distant future."

Village assures mobile home owners:

'Whipple Tree' garages will stay'

by LINDA PUNCH

Wheeling village officials Monday assured more than 150 residents of the Whipple Tree Village mobile home park that there will be no "demolition" of garages and additions built in violation of village codes.

Trustee Gilbert Monson, chairman of the real estate and zoning committee, said village officials are seeking a solution to alleged violation of safety and building codes at Whipple Tree village. Village and county officials said as many as 50 permanent, attached garages at the mobile home park, 525 N. McHenry Rd., were built illegally.

Monson said trustees have "re-assess your property and equity."

"We're trying to find an answer to the problem. Certainly, carte blanche demolition is not the answer," he said.

ALLEGED CODE violations were discovered last fall when Building Comm. Walter Repholz visited Whipple Tree Village. He ordered four garages under construction dismantled saying they constituted fire and other safety hazards.

Residents attending the meeting said they were not told that garages, canopies and porches might be in violation of village ordinance. One man said the additions were included in the contract when he purchased his mobile home.

Several residents criticized the village for not providing guidelines for mobile homes when Whipple Tree was being built. One woman said Whipple Tree residents are "frightened to death" about the future of their homes.

"People have constructed garages and additions and now we're being harassed and told to tear them down. If the law wasn't set down two years ago, why are we being penalized now," she said.

TRUSTEE OTIS L. Hedlund said Whipple Tree residents "are jumping to conclusions" about having to tear down all additions.

"As far as I'm concerned, we can make allowances for existing structures. What goes on in the future is what we have to decide tonight," he said.

Trustee Charles Kerr denied that Repholz was harassing Whipple Tree residents.

"I think we finally have a man who believes in enforcing the law. If his predecessor had done his job, we wouldn't have had this bucket of worms," he said.

Monson asked Whipple Tree residents to appoint a 10-man committee to meet with village officials to discuss revisions of ordinances governing mobile home parks. The committee will meet at 8 p.m. Feb. 5 at the village hall, 235 W. Dundee Rd.

Dist. 214 faces big loss of funds with unit schools

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday night voted unanimously to oppose any effort by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to form a unit district.

Roads near Wheeling High to get school crossing signs

School crossing signs will be installed at Ill. Rte. 83 and S. Merle Lane to ease traffic problems near Wheeling High School, 908 S. Elmhurst Rd.

Village officials last October asked the Illinois Dept. of Transportation (IDOT) to install traffic lights at the intersection because of the large number of high school students crossing the street in that area. The state denied the request.

Roy Fonda, North Area traffic engineer, said the state will only pay for traffic signals for elementary school crossings. He said adult crossing guards and police officers "continues to be the most appropriate method of assisting crossing high school students at this location."

Fonda said the village could conduct a traffic volume survey at the intersection to see whether the "volume would justify a traffic signal." He said work orders have been issued for the school crossing signs and "the work will be completed just as soon as our schedule allows."

TRUSTEE Charles Kerr, chairman of the police and fire committee, said a traffic light could be installed, but only with funding from the village and school district.

"The schools (High School Dist. 214) said they were not particularly interested, and I think it is too expensive a project for the village," he said.

Kerr said school crossing signs are the only alternative "and for the time being that's all we can do about it."

Jack Metzger, a village resident, last week said that village trustees should reconsider installing a traffic light despite the high cost.

"I WONDER WHAT the cost of a child's life would be? I know in Waukegan, they couldn't get a traffic light until a kid got killed. Now they've got one," he said.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said policemen have been acting as crossing guards at the location on most school days. He suggested that village trustees consider hiring a crossing guard for the intersection during the next fiscal year.

"At first we didn't think a crossing guard would work because the high school kids might not pay attention. Now we feel it might be effective," he said.

It was their kind of day; three inches of snow and more on its way.

For these guys, a winter snowstorm is what their sport is all about.

Wheeling - Buffalo Grove

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21

The Kilmer School PTO will hold a Dominick's Benefit Day Wednesday, at the store in Lynn Plaza, Dundee and Wheeling roads, Wheeling.

Special coupons, available at the store manager's desk, must be presented at the time purchases are made for the PTO to receive a 5 per cent donation from the store. Proceeds will be used to purchase playground equipment for the school, 655 Golfview Terr., Buffalo Grove.

Fifth and sixth grade Whitman School students and parents are invited to a parent-student recreation night at the school, 133 S. Wille, Wheeling, at 7 p.m. Wednesday. Some of the Whitman staff will be on hand, and parents and students will be able to play volleyball, floor hockey, basketball, cageball and gymnastics.

Irving School PTO will sponsor an adult recreation time for men and women at the school, 125 Radcliffe Rd., Buffalo Grove, at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday. The school will provide basketball and volleyball equipment.

Questions, comments and criticisms will all be welcomed at the Whitman School Parent Advisory Council meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. Parents are welcome to attend the forum, which will be held in the school lounge, 133 S. Wille Ave., Wheeling.

First grade students at Sandburg School, 3316 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Wheeling, will visit Brookfield Zoo Thursday as a culmination of the study unit on animals. The children will leave at 9 a.m. and return at 3:30 p.m.

Special Education

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, will be the guest speaker at the Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday in room 124C in Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights. Her topic will be "Legislation for the Special Child."

Mrs. Chapman is a member of the House Committee on Education and the chairman of the House Human Resources Committee. She is also the Illinois delegate to the Education Commission of the States.

City vote debate scheduled tonight

Residents of the Quincy Park quadruminium apartment complex and Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. officials will meet today at 7:30 p.m. to debate the proposed incorporation of Prospect Heights.

The meeting will be held at the Stevenson Elementary School, 1375 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling.

PHIA is supporting Saturday's incorporation referendum.

Some residents of Quincy Park, located on Old Willow Road just east of Wolf Road, have voiced their objections to incorporation, fearing it will lead to higher taxes.

A group of about 15 Quincy Park residents distributed leaflets over the weekend to residents of nearby apartment complexes and to Sunday churchgoers in an effort to encourage a negative vote, said Sandra Glody of Quincy Park.

The citizens' group also plans mailings this week to about 2,000 homeowners in Prospect Heights "to encourage them to vote 'no' on Saturday," she said.

"We just believe that incorporation will eventually mean more taxes and higher rents for those who live in apartments. No one wants to face that fact now, but increased taxes are inevitable," Mrs. Glody said.

The proposed incorporation boundaries are Sanders Road on the east, Windsor Drive on the west, Hintz Road on the north and Euclid Avenue on the south.

Karen Quinlan case before N.J. top court

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Seven justices of New Jersey's highest court took up the Karen Ann Quinlan "right to die" case Monday and some indicated they might be swayed by evidence that physicians make life-or-death decisions as part of a daily routine.

Karen's parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, asked the state Supreme Court to let their daughter die "with grace and dignity." Karen has been in a coma, her life sustained by a respirator, since last April 14 when she mixed tranquilizers and alcohol at a party for a friend.

The Quinlans want the court to grant them permission to remove Karen from the respirator. In October, the Quinlans failed to persuade a lower court to support them in their plea. Her doctors had refused their request to unplug the respirator, asserting that her brain is alive and she does not meet any of the medical standards normally used to declare a person dead.

When the oral arguments concluded, the justices gave no indication of when they might hand down a decision in the case.

The Quinlans' attorney, Paul Armstrong, was peppered with a series of questions on euthanasia — mercy killing — and the possible effects of a decision that would end Karen's life.

Is it ethical, the justices asked, for a doctor and family to decide not to start life-sustaining measures when a patient is terminally ill? Should a patient, such as Karen, be kept alive for 50 years if

Moslems, Christians retreat from Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem and Christian gunmen began withdrawing from Beirut's long-embattled streets Monday in what a Palestinian guerrilla leader said was "a real truce... the war is over."

Police said fighting was limited to shooting incidents between looters and Palestinian troops enforcing the cease-fire.

Police sources said five persons were killed, one of the lowest casualty figures for weeks in the nine-month war that killed more than 10,000 persons and wounded at least 21,000.

The joint Lebanese-Syrian-Palestinian truce committee reported the "demilitarization process" was progressing. Under the plan by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam, international highways have opened and all gunmen are to be off the streets by 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The state radio said all gunmen from both Christian and Moslem sides had withdrawn from the city by 10 p.m.

Lebanese security forces, including the army, began taking charge of roads although patrols of Palestine Liberation Army soldiers moved through western Beirut when thousands of citizens poured out of their homes to walk about in safety for the first time in months.

Palestinian guerrilla leader Zuheir Mohsen said of the Syrian-negotiated agreement between the warring factions: "This is not just another truce, but a real end to the civil war."

"The war is over," said Mohsen, head of the Syrian-backed Al Salqa guerrillas. "I don't believe that anyone will be able to explode it again — not today, not tomorrow and not in the near or distant

$1.5 million loss foreseen

Dist. 214 opposes unit plan

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday night voted unanimously to oppose any effort by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to form a unit district.

The board learned Monday night that the district stands to lose about $1.5 million a year in state aid if a Dist. 59 unit district is formed. Administrators also told the board Monday they could not see "any advantages" for Dist. 214 if a unit district is formed.

Dist. 59 is in the midst of studying converting to a unit district in which one administration and school board would govern elementary and high schools. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in Dist. 214.

ACCORDING TO figures reviewed by the Dist. 214 board, the high school district would lose about 42 per cent of its tax base, about 27 per cent of its students and about $8 million in assets if a unit district were formed.

Gilbert said not only would a unit district hurt them financially, but it would also cause "personnel problems."

"Most of our declining enrollment is in the remaining part of Dist. 214. We would have to decrease personnel more rapidly and in greater proportion," Gilbert said.

Board Pres. Eugene Artemenko, the only member of the Dist. 214 board from the Dist. 59 attendance area, said the impetus behind the Dist. 59 study is the "opportunity to increase their assessed valuation per student. If it were not to their (financial) benefit they wouldn't go ahead with the study."

ASSOCIATE SUPT. Robert Weber said depending on the tax rate that would be set for the unit district, Dist. 59 property owners and businesses could raise "the same amount of money at a lower tax rate" because they would have a high assessed valuation value per child.

"I haven't found any benefits (to Dist. 214) from a financial standpoint," Weber said. "Our figures show we would receive about $100 per student less in state aid and taxes than we could as we are now. That would amount to about $1.5 million less in available funds," Weber said.

Gilbert said Dist. 59 expects to have its unit district study completed by April and "we could conceivably be three months away from a hearing."

Gilbert said after the study is completed a petition to form the unit district must be presented to the county superintendent of schools, who will then hold a public hearing. A report of the hearing is sent to the state superintendent of schools who can call for a vote on the question.

"IT WOULD not serve us well to wait to come up with a decision from the Dist. 214 board on how we feel on this issue," said Artemenko. "If they think Dist. 214 doesn't care they will continue. If they think we are against it they might change their decision on this."

"This board's concern is for all of the kids in the district," Gilbert said. "We are not mad at anybody in particular. We are acting in the best interest of the whole district."

Bicentennial panel announces changes

The Buffalo Grove Bicentennial Commission has announced several changes in committee members.

Barbara Sheldon was appointed commission chairman. Other officers include Carol Polkow, secretary; Jack Sharp, public relations; Michael

Members include John Panella, Pat Panella, Darlene Coe, Sue Swanson, Erica Eddy, Susan Popp, Dwight Chapman, Greg Goldbogen and Mary Kay Yost.

Use of drugs by young adults rises in village

Drug usage in Buffalo Grove is increasing, particularly among young adults, ages 18 to 25, a Buffalo Grove police detective told the village president's roundtable discussion Monday night.

Sgt. Kenneth Blanchett of the Buffalo Grove Police Dept., said drug arrests among adults in 1975 were up 34 per cent over 1974. Drug arrests among juveniles under age 17 were down 22 per cent, he added.

Blanchett said young singles and couples ages 18 to 25 were experimenting more with drugs and said that out of 27 reported drug overdoses, last year, 17 were in the 18 to 25 age bracket.

THE LOWER NUMBER of arrests among high school students is primarily the result of a successful education program in the high school, Blanchett said.

Despite the high school program, the police department is still having problems reaching enough parents and children, primarily because of the village's growth and parents' attitudes, Blanchett said.

"The growing village population is a big problem," Blanchett said. "We're growing so fast, that we don't reach enough people."

When children ask their parents about a certain drug or its effects, parents often "throw up a stone wall," Blanchett said.

"PARENTS WILL say, 'Don't try that — it's bad,' but that doesn't solve the problem," Blanchett said. "If they don't answer why it's bad, the child will find out somewhere else — and he may try it himself."

Blanchett also said it takes "constant effort to keep up with the changing jargon. The pills are the same, but the names change constantly."

The Buffalo Grove police dept has four full-time officers working in drug enforcement program, Blanchett said. The department will get two additional officers if the village receives a crime-prevention grant for the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

The grant has been applied for and a decision is expected by the end of the month.

Blanchett said most of the drugs originate in Chicago or Waukegan. The big pushers purchase illicit drugs in large quantities in those cities, and unload drugs through trusted contacts in the suburbs.

Twinkle fingers learn new skill

Mastering a G-chord is more fun with company. Students participating in the Buffalo Grove Park District's guitar lessons are learning "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star" and other standbys with patient advice from instructor Evie Weber.

It may be a while before they hit the coffeehouse circuit, but it's a lot of fun getting there!

Dist. 214 vote opposes '59' unit plan

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday night voted unanimously to oppose any effort by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to form a unit district.

The board learned Monday night that the district stands to lose about $1.5 million a year in state aid if a Dist. 59 unit district is formed. Administrators also told the board Monday they could not see "any advantages" for Dist. 214 if a unit district is formed.

Village to mull need for taxis

The need for more taxi cabs in Elk Grove Village will be discussed again when officials meet in a special hearing tonight.

The village board has scheduled a special 7 p.m. session to discuss the requests of two taxi cab companies seeking to begin service in the community. If either request is approved, board action creating more taxi cab licenses could come at the 8 p.m. board meeting.

At the village board meeting, the board also is to consider a $1,150 contribution to the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission for support of 1976 regional planning activities.

TASTE GOOD? Robby Frost, 1½, from Elk Grove Village thinks so. Robby stopped for a taste when the snow shoveling chores got a bit tiresome. It didn't get too cold, though, thanks to a snug snowsuit.

Program cuts also considered

Dist. 59 faces $500,000 deficit

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 faces program cuts and a deficit budget for next year, despite a tax rate increase approved by voters last fall.

After hearing financial projections for the next four years, the school board Monday discussed the need to work with a minimum $500,000 deficit next year and looked at possible program cuts to stay within this budget.

The board approved looking at a $500,000 deficit budget for the education fund next year and possible program cuts to meet this budget.

ARTHUR PERRY, district financial director, projected a deficit of as much as $2.3 million in the education fund next year, if the district faces an 8 per cent inflation rate and does not cut programs. The projection is based on expenditures of $12.3 million and revenue of about $10 million. The revenue figure includes about $1.4 million of borrowed money through tax anticipation warrants.

Perry also figured a cut in expenditures of about $200,000 for declining enrollment, and an increase of about $1.25 million in revenue, from the 25 cents per $100 valuation tax rate increase approved by the voters in September.

Perry figured the district could face an 8 per cent inflation factor, and accept a $500,000 deficit budget by cutting programs by about 3 per cent. The administration will outline the effects of this program cut for the board.

Perry projected deficits of $3.5 million for the 1977-78 school year and of $4.78 million by the 1978-79 school year, using an 8 per cent inflation factor and no program cuts.

"IN ABOUT THREE years, we'll have used up our borrowing power and will be faced with selling working cash bonds, issuing teachers orders or going to the voters for a tax increase," Perry said.

The administration has recommended that the board consider a $500,000 deficit next year, which would allow for a 4.5 per cent inflation factor and no program cuts.

"I think an 8 per cent inflation figure is more realistic," said board member Avis Wold. "If we're going to stay around a $500,000 deficit, we're going to have to face some cuts somewhere. I want to know what this means to the programs."

She said the district should "explore all alternatives, so our decision will have some accountability and credibility."

Board member Emil Bahmaier said, "I don't think we should say we can't maintain our standards" with program cuts. "We're going to have to look at our programs by their cost effectiveness."

Jaycees set town meet for March

The Elk Grove Jaycees have planned a town meeting for March 6 to discuss community concerns.

"It will be a one-day community forum open to citizens to discuss what they feel are Elk Grove Village's problems," said Fred Geinosky, Jaycee president.

A number of community service organizations are planning the town meeting, which will be part of the village's 20th birthday and Bicentennial celebration. The format will be similar to the town meetings held in Revolutionary times, Geinosky said.

HE SAID LOCAL dignitaries and congressmen will be invited to the event, now scheduled for 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Elk Grove High School. The guests will open the morning discussion of community and area problems, with open debate following.

The afternoon also will commence with speeches followed by debate on solutions to the problems identified in the morning session.

Geinosky said typists will work throughout the day so that a full summary of the discussions will be available to each participant at the end of the day.

Working on the project are the local senior citizens group, the Junior Women's Club, Jaycees and Jayceettes. "We're looking for other service organizations or individuals to join us in planning the program," said Frank Czarnik of the planning group.

The planning group meets Tuesday evenings at village hall, 901 Wellington Ave. Interested persons may call Czarnik at 439-5072 for more details.

Friday is last local voter signup day

Friday is the last day before the March 16 primary for voter registration at the Elk Grove Village Clerk's office, 901 Wellington Ave.

More information can be obtained by calling the clerk's office, 439-3308.

Schools

St. Raymond's School

Several get-acquainted coffees are being scheduled for parents of students attending St. Raymond's School and persons interested in learning more about the educational facilities.

The 9:30 a.m. meetings will be held in the rectory meeting room, 311 S. I-Oka, Mount Prospect. Parents of incoming kindergarten students are invited to attend Thursday's meeting. Other meetings are scheduled for Feb. 3, primary grades; Feb. 10 and 13, mixed grades and Feb. 19, kindergarten.

Joan Kane, director of the school's religious education department, and Sister Judy, principal, will be present at the meetings to answer questions and guide a tour of the school.

Saint Thomas of Villanova

Parents of present and future St. Thomas of Villanova School students are invited to find out what is taught in the school, how it is taught and why at open house sessions Wednesday, Thursday and Feb. 4, at the school 1141 E. Anderson Dr., Palatine.

St. Thomas uses individualized instruction, team teaching and multiple grouping of children in their nongraded learning approach. The teaching methods and curriculum of the school will be explained at each session.

Parents of intermediate students, grades 4, 5 and 6 are invited to Wednesday session. The Thursday session is geared to parents of primary students, grades 1, 2 and 3. Parents of junior high students are asked to attend the Feb. 4 session. All sessions begin at 7:30 p.m.

Arlington Heights Dist. 25

The Dancemakers will perform for students at Ridge School, 800 Fernandez, Arlington Heights, Thursday, at 1:30 and 2:30 p.m. The featured program, "Rhythm is in You," is a demonstration concert exploring the rhythm in nature and everyday activities. The program traces the development of a dancer and ends with a dance production. Nana Sheneflug, Joseph Holmes and Veda Sidney are the Dancemakers.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59

Harry Volkman, WGN-TV weather forecaster, will speak to third, fourth and fifth grade students at John Jay School today at 1 p.m. Residents are invited to attend the program at the school, 1835 W. Phasant Tr., Mount Prospect.

Fourth and fifth grade students will be entertained Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. by story teller Esther McCormick.

Harriett Krumpes will help kindergartners, first and second graders to make clothespin dolls Thursday at 9:30 a.m. Children also will be able to view her doll collection. Parents are invited to attend.

Sacred Heart High School

Nine Mexican students are learning about American life first hand this month at Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows.

The Experiment in International Living, Brattleboro, Vt., is sponsoring the students' visit. The girls are all students at the Marillac Institute for Bilingual Secretaries. Each visitor is living with a host family and accompanying a Sacred Heart student throughout the school day.

A party will be given for the host families by the visitors at the school Wednesday, marking the end of their visit.

High School Dist. 211

An educational seminar in adolescent behavior is being offered to all parents of Conant High School students Thursdays from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Conant, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates. Topics of discussion will include skills for effective communication, dynamics of adolescent behavior and parent-teen-ager relationships. For further information, contact Julie Malen, social worker, 885-4368, ext. 19.

High School Dist. 214

"Law: Marriage and Divorce" will be the subject of a two-part department. Sessions will be held Thursday and Feb. 5. Both meetings sponsored by High School Dist. 214's continuing education programs will be from 7:30 to 10 p.m. at Wheeling High School, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd., Wheeling.

The major aspects of divorce will be covered, including grounds for divorce, alimony, property rights, child custody and support and the no fault divorce bills currently pending in the Illinois legislature. The instructor, Edward I. Stein, is a specialist in matrimonial law.

Tuition for the series is $13. For information call 253-1700 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Mark Schmidt, percussionist with Forest View High School's band has been accepted for membership in the United States Collegiate Wind Band and will make a concert tour of seven European countries this summer. The band consists of a maximum of 100 college and high school musicians chosen from the entire country once each year.

In addition to performing in concerts, Mark will have the opportunity to visit museums and places of musical interest such as Mozart's house in Salzburg, Austria, and Beethoven's home in Bonn, Germany.

Special Education

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, will be the guest speaker at the Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Room 124C in Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights. Her topic will be "Legislation for the Special Child."

Mrs. Chapman is a member of the House Committee on Education and the chairman of the House Human Resources Committee. She is also the Illinois delegate to the Education Commission of the States.

Scholarships

High school seniors in the top quarter of their graduating class can participate in National College of Education's second competitive scholarship weekend Friday and Saturday. Three full-tuition and 30 partial-tuition scholarships, all for four years, will be awarded.

To apply for a competitive scholarship or learn more about the program, write or call Douglas Paul, associate director of admissions, National College of Education, 2840 Sheridan Rd., Evanston, 60201, telephone 258-5150, ext. 50.

Contests

M. Kallis and Co., one of Chicago's oldest printing companies, will sponsor a Bicentennial essay contest for all high school seniors in Cook County.

The essay should be 500 words or less based on the theme "What Freedom of Speech Means to Me." First prize will be a $1,000 college scholarship. Second and third prizes will be $500 and $250 respectively. Each of the three winners will receive their essays printed in a leather bound book.

Entries should be mailed before April 1 to Contest, c/o M. Kallis and Co., Printers, 1130 S. Canal St., Chicago, Ill. 60607.

In general . . .

"A Search for Inner Freedom" will be the topic of a lecture by Rolfe May Thursday at 8 p.m. at Mother Guerin High School, 3001 Belmont Ave., River Grove. This is the fourth in a series of "Tomorrow Talks" sponsored by the Archdiocese of Chicago School Board and the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine. Tickets are $3 at the door.

Zanca tries for third term

Three in Dist. 59 seek reelection

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59's school board president and two other incumbents plan to run for reelection in April.

Board Pres. Judith Zanca will run for a third three-year term on the board in April. Mrs. Zanca, 81 Roxbury Ln., Des Plaines, said the three incumbents will be running in separate campaigns.

She said she decided to run for a third term because the "board is a young board that needs qualified, experienced members. In these times of change we need experience."

INCUMBENT Emil Bahmaier is completing his first three-year term. He said he wants to run for the board again because "we have started something good and I would like to keep the momentum on the board."

Bahmaier, 1822 Phasant Tr., Mount Prospect, said he is interested in developing the gifted program, researching the unit school district option and setting up an alternative school which would concentrate on basic academics.

Erwin Poklacki, who was appointed to the board in July, wants to run for the board in April, saying he "feels I am doing a useful job. I've come to know valuable information that should not be wasted."

Poklacki, 1223 S. Fernandez Ave., Arlington Heights, served on the board from 1971-74. He also was president of the Dist. 59 School Community Council before accepting the board position last summer.

Fatal ambulance crash under study

Schaumburg Battalion Chief Lloyd Abrahamson has begun an investigation into the circumstances of a fatal, Friday night accident involving a village ambulance.

Abrahamson said Monday his preliminary review indicates the fire department ambulance was struck at Meacham and Nerge roads, Elk Grove Village, by a car driven by a 69-year-old Roselle Man, Walter Wisniewski.

Wisniewski was killed in the mishap and three Schaumburg firefighters were injured.

"In my opinion, the chassis looks like it was hit by the car, but more investigation is needed," Abrahamson said.

THE INCIDENT was the second within the last 30 days in which a fire department vehicle was demolished in a traffic accident. Last month a $25,500 rescue squad vehicle was destroyed in an accident at Meacham and Higgins roads. There were no injuries in that incident.

The Friday accident occurred at Meacham and Nerge roads while the ambulance was en route to Alexian Brothers Medical Center transporting a man, earlier arrested by Schaumburg police, who had complained of chest pains.

Wisniewski's wife, Frances, a passenger in the car, had complained of chest and back pains but was treated and released from Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Also treated and released were firefighters, John Dixon, 34, David Grandt, 23 and Martin Coniglio, 32, driver of the ambulance.

Rudolfo Perez, 48, Hoffman Estates, who was being transported when the accident occurred, was not injured in the collision.

ABRAHAMSON said the firefighters involved in the incident "are really shook."

"I just don't know if you can blame anyone. All of our men are cautious and really look and listen, but we travel a lot of miles and, I guess, accidents are bound to happen," he said.

The ambulance chassis, valued at about $6,000, was apparently damaged beyond repair in the accident.

Loss of the chassis will not impair the ambulance or paramedic service because the village has two other ambulances in service, Abrahamson said.

"WE HAVE ALWAYS operated with a spare in reserve," Abrahamson said.

The "box," or area of the vehicle in which patients are transported, did not suffer serious damage, Abrahamson said, explaining it is detachable from the chassis.

"But the chassis itself was totaled," Abrahamson said.

Bensenville to take sewage of DuPage County firms

Elk Grove Village industries located in DuPage County will be given waste water treatment by Bensenville under a proposed agreement between the two villages.

The agreement is expected to save Elk Grove Village and the industries money and will fulfill the first phase of the Regional Wastewater Treatment Plan goal of consolidation of treatment facilities.

Peter Kaleta, assistant village engineer, said the village will save maintenance costs at the two treatment plants, located on Pan-Am Boulevard in the Devon-O'Hare Industrial Park and on Catharine Street in the Elk Grove Industrial Park.

A REPORT ISSUED by Village Mgr. Charles A. Willis states sanitary sewer users in the two industrial parks will save 57 cents per 1,000 gallons of waste, based on what the new Bensenville charges would be.

Willis said Bensenville's administration and legislative officials "are satisfied" with the proposed joint agreement and are expected to approve it in early February.

The agreement has been given to the Elk Grove Village Board for its consideration. Willis is recommending its approval.

Kaleta said because of new Illinois Pollution Control Board requirements, the village eventually would have had to dismantle the two industrial park treatment plants. "We would be forced to dismantle them because of the consolidation efforts," he said.

THE AGREEMENT would immediately service the 89 acres owned by Sears, Roebuck and Co. and the same 28 buildings in the Elk Grove Industrial Park. Kaleta said once the village constructed a second sewer interceptor line, at a cost of about $60,000, the Devon-O'Hare Industrial Park could be serviced by Bensenville.

For the area to be initially serviced, "the lines have already been put in but the final tie-ups have not been made," Kaleta said. Trammell Crow, developer of the Elk Grove Industrial Park, build this interceptor, and a $224 per acre connection fee will be charged.

Willis said the annual estimated savings of $110 per acre would cover the connection fee in two years.

Alexian center seeks volunteers for therapy

Volunteers are needed in at least 11 areas to work on activity therapy for patients of the Niehoff Pavilion at the Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

Activity therapy is a combination of social, educational and recreational activities to help the patients readjust to community living and develop constructive use of their leisure time. Involved would be patients in the hospital's mental health, rehabilitation and alcoholic treatment units.

"Volunteers are needed very badly," said Shirley Garrison, director of public relations.

Mrs. Garrison said community orientation guides are needed to help organize tours into the community. Also needed are special-event planners, daily-living specialists to help with trips to stores and other homemaking skills, hair styling specialists, entertainers, librarians and transportation aides to provide means for traveling to activities.

THE PAVILION also is seeking specialists in arts, crafts and other special interests, a writer-producer for a monthly newsletter, movie projectionists and people to help with trips.

Mrs. Garrison said some of the needs could be filled as group projects by community service groups. The Elk Grove Junior Women's Club comes in once a month to help out, she said.

The pavilion also is seeking donations of materials. The list includes a stove, barbecue grill, hairdryer, exercise machine, popcorn popper, iron and board, sewing machine, greenhouse and fencing. For the rehabilitation unit, a station wagon, bookshelves, stereo-radio and current books, magazines and records are needed.

Persons wishing to become volunteers or donate materials should call Judy Wathen, director of volunteer services, 437-5500, ext. 582.

Mrs. Wathen said the volunteers will be sent a descriptive program and have two interviews before being accepted. A mini-orientation and six weeks of on-the-job training will follow. The amount of training will depend on the service being filled.

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Seven justices of New Jersey's highest court took up the Karen Ann Quinlan "right to die" case Monday and some indicated they might be swayed by evidence that physicians make life-or-death decisions as part of a daily routine.

Karen's parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, asked the state Supreme Court to let their daughter die "with grace and dignity." Karen has been in a coma, her life sustained by a respirator, since last April 14 when she mixed tranquilizers and alcohol at a party for a friend.

The Quinlans want the court to grant them permission to remove Karen from the respirator. In October, the Quinlans failed to persuade a lower court to support them in their plea. Her doctors had refused their request to unplug the respirator, asserting that her brain is alive and she does not meet any of the medical standards normally used to declare a person dead.

When the oral arguments concluded, the justices gave no indication of when they might hand down a decision in the case.

The Quinlans' attorney, Paul Armstrong, was peppered with a series of questions on euthanasia — mercy killing — and the possible effects of a decision that would end Karen's life.

Is it ethical, the justices asked, for a doctor and family to decide not to start life-sustaining measures when a patient is terminally ill? Should a patient, such as Karen, be kept alive for 50 years if (Continued on Page 3)

Moslems, Christians retreat from Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem and Christian gunmen began withdrawing from Beirut's long-embattled streets Monday in what a Palestinian guerrilla leader said was "a real truce... the war is over."

Police said fighting was limited to shooting incidents between looters and Palestinian troops enforcing the cease-fire.

Police sources said five persons were killed, one of the lowest casualty figures for weeks in the nine-month war that killed more than 10,000 persons and wounded at least 21,000.

The joint Lebanese-Syrian-Palestinian truce committee reported the "demilitarization process" was progressing. Under the plan by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam, international highways have opened and all gunmen are to be off the streets by 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The state radio said all gunmen from both Christian and Moslem sides had withdrawn from the city by 10 p.m.

Lebanese security forces, including the army, began taking charge of roads although patrols of Palestine Liberation Army soldiers moved through western Beirut when thousands of citizens poured out of their homes to walk about in safety for the first time in months.

Palestinian guerrilla leader Zuheir Mohsen said of the Syrian-negotiated agreement between the warring factions: "This is not just another truce, but a real end to the civil war."

"The war is over," said Mohsen, head of the Syrian-backed Al Saiqa guerrillas. "I don't believe that anyone will be able to explode it again — not today, not tomorrow and not in the near or distant (Continued on Page 3)

Dist. 54 hears year-round plan

A program on the financial and social advantages of a year-round school program has been presented to the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education by district resident Barbara Fancher and two administrators from a year-round program.

Mrs. Fancher and Joseph Sini and Bill Blacki, administrators from Valley View Dist. 365 in Romeoville which is on a year-round program, told the board last week using school buildings all year results in construction savings.

Dist. 365 went on a year-round program by citizen choice after the district reached its indebtedness limit. No new schools could be built but present schools were still overcrowded.

A year-round program consists of four groups of students attending school for 45 school days with a break for 15 days. Advantages of the program include giving students needed extra help; having the opportunity to take extended field trips on breaks; and giving high school students the chance to hold jobs at staggered periods during the year rather than in an overcrowded summer job market.

Board Pres. Dr. Edgar Feldman said the board would take the information on the year-round school "under advisement."

3 teens arrested on theft charges

Hoffman Estates police arrested three teen-agers Monday in connection with a burglary at 199 Western St., where cameras and various items were reported stolen Saturday, police said.

Police recovered two cameras, two watches and two necklaces after arresting the youths, ages 15 and 16, all of Hoffman Estates, authorities said.

The arrests came after an investigation by Det. Joseph Tazelaar. The youths were released into the custody of their parents, pending action in Cook County Juvenile Court.

$700 office theft under investigation

Schaumburg police Monday were investigating a burglary in which about $700 worth of office equipment was reported stolen Sunday from 629 Lunt Ave. in the Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park.

Burglars broke into Sterocjek Engineering and stole a telephone answering system and an electric typewriter, police were told. Taken from the other office in the building, Browning Automatics, was a calculator and electric typewriter, police said.

Entry was gained by prying open a rear door, police reported.

30 summer classes requested

There will be 30 summer school courses for Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 students to choose from this year if the board of education approves a recommendation from the district administration.

The administration is proposing that 30 courses be offered, including four new selections, at 16 district schools. Last year summer school was held in 11 Dist. 54 schools.

Carl Seltzer, assistant superintendent for curriculum, explained the program to the board last week and the board is expected to take action on it at its Feb. 5 meeting.

NEW COURSES in the proposal are creative dramatics, including puppetry, pantomime and charades; kindergarten, open to any student who has completed kindergarten and wants further enrichment in art, coordination, creative dramatics and science; math and consumer skills, open to students in grades 5 to 8, designed to teach students to use math in making consumer decisions; and advanced plant studies, open to students presently in grades 7 and 8, which includes landscaping, gardening and care of greenhouse plants.

Seltzer said the home economics and industrial arts courses offered this summer will be different from those offered last summer. In home economics, students will study foreign cookery and learn to make hats, shirts, shop aprons and other useful articles.

In industrial arts, students will make three projects involving the method of construction used in industry today.

OTHER COURSES being offered are painting and mixed media, sculpture, drawing, crafts, astronomy, intermediate band, advanced band, string orchestra, conversational Spanish, conversational French, English as a second language, language arts, basic mathematics; recreational mathematics, nature and field studies, outdoor fun, photography, physical skill development, piano, Schaumburg early education center, elementary service center, junior high service center and typing.

Registration is scheduled for April 28 at any Dist. 54 school. More information can be obtained from the instructional center at 894-0331.

'Bye, Bye Birdie' at Fremd High

Fremd High School students will receive the '50s Feb. 5-7 when they present the musical "Bye, Bye Birdie."

The star of the show is Conrad Birdie, played by Chuck Napolitano, the heart throb of teen-age girls everywhere.

An elaborate farewell on nationwide TV has been planned by Birdie's manager Albert, played by Glenn Killoren, in which Kim, played by Claudia Crase, is chosen to receive Birdie's last kiss.

Problems develop, however, when Kim's boyfriend turns out to be very jealous and Albert's girlfriend, Rosie, played by Lisa Zakrajsek, gets married in her mind.

The musical, a multimedia production featuring movies and slides for background sets, will be held in the Fremd cafeteria, 1000 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine, at 8 p.m. all three nights. Tickets are $2 for all seats.

Area colorguard take first in contest

The Colorguard of the Guardsmen Drum and Bugle Corps, performing as a competition guard for the first time in the corps' 15 year history, took first place in a recent competition in Greenfield, Wis.

Colorguard instructor Len Kryzyski said the event was the first time Guardsmen members have performed alone.

"I was amazed the girls could put together such a difficult and well-disciplined drill in so short a time," said Al LeMert, corps director, adding the Colorguard was organized in October.

The Guardsmen have dedicated their 1976 season to Denise Tomaszewski, a four-year veteran on the corps who died unexpectedly in November.

Youth center offers film show Thursday

"The Premature Burial," a Roger Corman film based on an Edgar Allan Poe story will be presented Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Hoffman Estates Youth Center, 161 Illinois Blvd.

The film, starring Ray Milland, is the first of a series of films to be shown by the youth center every other week.

Ira Levin, director of the service, said the program is free and open to all high school students.

Seniors' tax exemptions set

Schaumburg Township Assessor Scott MacEachron has announced 1975 tax relief claim forms for senior citizens are available in the township office, 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg.

Homeowners do not have to wait until their second installment tax bill arrives to file, MacEachron said, since the 1974 tax figures will be used on the form.

MacEachron said Homestead Exemption applications also are available for homeowners born in or before 1910.

Y-Sabbath Feb. 22

Paul Lauver, 16 W. Glenlake, Roselle, has been appointed chairman of Twinbrook YMCA Y-Sabbath Sunday, Feb. 22.

A national program, Y-Sabbath, is celebrated at the same time annually in most YMCA localities.

"The goals of the YMCA are in keeping with those of the religious community," said Lauver. "Our expanding programs and future plans call for effective communication with church oriented groups to meet the opportunities in the family and youth," Lauver added.

Lauver said he will work through the area Clergy Council to contact each church in the Twinbrook YMCA service area asking that the YMCA story be included in part of the service that Sunday.

A member of the Twinbrook YMCA Board of Managers, Lauver is also area chairman of the YMCA World Service program.

Chamber merger unsure

It appears Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates chambers of commerce may be about to merge. Or are they?

Hoffman Estates chamber leaders and some representatives of the Greater Schaumburg Assoc. of Commerce and Industry are convinced the "marriage" will take place within the next several months.

Other Schaumburg chamber leaders indicate the proposed amalgamation is not all that sure.

At any rate, Schaumburg chamber members will meet Feb. 27 to vote on the merger and Hoffman Estates members also expect to meet about that time for an official poll on the question.

IT'S TRUE. You can't fight the Big City Hall.

Last week Chicago Aviation Comm. J. P. "Pat" Dunne refused this reporter's request to attend a public meeting at O'Hare Airport between city officials and representatives of the Federal Aviation Administration.

The meeting was called by Chicago aviation department personnel who were unable to attend a recent informal FAA session dealing with airspace aspects of improvements proposed at Schaumburg Airport.

The people who run the big airport have nothing against the little airport, but wanted to know the answers to several "what if" questions.

What if operators of Schaumburg Airport, who now want to extend the single runway from 3,100 feet to 3,900 feet, several years hence request to lengthen the landing strip to 5,000 feet, city officials asked. And what if continued growth in the Schaumburg area necessitates future expansion of the local airport to accommodate more and larger aircraft, they asked.

Unfortunately, because neither question addressed the airspace usage, FAA representatives were unable to respond to either question.

But, what does all that have to do with Dunne's adamancy against my coming to his meeting?

Well, it seems the commissioner was fearful I might pick up some information about future plans for expansion at O'Hare. Can you imagine that?

Happy St. Patrick's Day to you, too, Commr. Dunne!

HOFFMAN ESTATES trustees who recently questioned a $330 bill for custom shades and curtains for the municipal building learned the windows are very narrow and tall, necessitating special treatment to keep the bright sunlight out of Village Pres. Virginia Hayter's and others' offices.

"We could have bought you a pair of sunglasses for about $5," quipped Trustee Bill Palmer.

Schaumburg girl in pageant finals

Ronda Lynne Hamilton, 15, of Schaumburg, has been selected a finalist in the 1976 Miss Illinois National Teen-Ager Pageant to be held in April in Decatur, Ill.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald R. Hamilton, 526 Plymouth Ln.

The pageant is the official state final for the Miss National Teen-Ager Pageant to be held in August in Atlanta, Ga.

The winner of the state pageant will receive a scholarship from Eureka College, Eureka, Ill., a $500 cash scholarship and other prizes including an all-expense-paid trip to the national competition.

Each contestant will be judged on scholastic achievement, leadership, poise, personality and beauty. There is no swim suit or talent competition.

Each contestant will recite a 100-word essay on "What's Right About America."

Miss Hamilton is being sponsored by the Schaumburg Jaycees.

Karen Quinlan case
before N.J. top court

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Seven justices of New Jersey's highest court took up the Karen Ann Quinlan "right to die" case Monday and some indicated they might be swayed by evidence that physicians make life-or-death decisions as part of a daily routine.

Karen's parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, asked the state Supreme Court to let their daughter die "with grace and dignity." Karen has been in a coma, her life sustained by a respirator, since last April 14 when she mixed tranquilizers and alcohol at a party for a friend.

The Quinlans want the court to grant them permission to remove Karen from the respirator. In October, the Quinlans failed to persuade a lower court to support them in their plea. Her doctors had refused their request to unplug the respirator, asserting that her brain is alive and she does not meet any of the medical standards normally used to declare a person dead.

When the oral arguments concluded, the justices gave no indication of when they might hand down a decision in the case.

The Quinlans' attorney, Paul Armstrong, was peppered with a series of questions on euthanasia — mercy killing — and the possible effects of a decision that would end Karen's life.

Is it ethical, the justices asked, for a doctor and family to decide not to start life-sustaining measures when a patient is terminally ill? Should a patient, such as Karen, be kept alive for 50 years if (Continued on Page 3)

Moslems, Christians
retreat from Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem and Christian gunmen began withdrawing from Beirut's long-embattled streets Monday in what a Palestinian guerrilla leader said was "a real truce... the war is over."

Police said fighting was limited to shooting incidents between looters and Palestinian troops enforcing the cease-fire.

Police sources said five persons were killed, one of the lowest casualty figures for weeks in the nine-month war that killed more than 10,000 persons and wounded at least 21,000.

The joint Lebanese-Syrian-Palestinian truce committee reported the "demilitarization process" was progressing. Under the plan by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam, international highways have opened and all gunmen are to be off the streets by 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The state radio said all gunmen from both Christian and Moslem sides had withdrawn from the city by 10 p.m.

Lebanese security forces, including the army, began taking charge of roads although patrols of Palestine Liberation Army soldiers moved through western Beirut when thousands of citizens poured out of their homes to walk about in safety for the first time in months.

Palestinian guerrilla leader Zuhair Mohsen said of the Syrian-negotiated agreement between the warring factions: "This is not just another truce, but a real end to the civil war."

"The war is over," said Mohsen, head of the Syrian-backed Al Saiga guerrillas. "I don't believe that anyone will be able to explode it again — not today, not tomorrow and not in the near or distant (Continued on Page 3)

On city manager vote, Meyer says:

'I'll petition for smaller council'

by JERRY THOMAS
Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer said Monday he is waiting to begin a petition drive for a referendum to reduce the number of city aldermen.

"I'm waiting for tonight's city council vote," Meyer said. "I do not oppose a manager form of government, but if we go that route we must go all the way and reduce the number of aldermen," Meyer said.

The city council is to vote tonight on holding an April 3 referendum asking if a strong managerial form of government should be adopted. The proposed referendum would also ask voters to decide if aldermen should still be elected from wards.

HOWEVER, MEYER has said he wants the referendum to include a third question to decide if the number of aldermen on the council should be reduced from 10 to five.

City Atty. Donald Rose said Monday he has delivered to Meyer petitions to amend the proposed referendum. Meyer vowed Monday he will begin circulating the petitions if the council votes tonight to hold the referendum without the third question.

Meyer said with a strong city manager and a fulltime finance officer, the city would have no need for a 10-member council. He said studies of neighboring communities have convinced him fewer aldermen would be needed.

"I will go to the citizens for support to add that question to the referendum," Meyer said.

Meyer said the third question would ask residents if only one alderman should be elected from each of the city's five wards.

ALDERMEN JAN. 12 IN committee voted against allowing residents to decide on the number of representatives from each ward.

Meyer said he will not start a petition drive if the council holds the first reading on the ordinance but does not vote on it.

"This would allow the aldermen to go to the people in their wards and ask them how they feel about a referendum that would add a strong manager but not change the council," Meyer said.

"However, if the council decides to waive the first reading of the ordinance and votes on it tonight, I'll take action."

Rose has said if 10 per cent of those residents who voted in the last election petition and file the request with the circuit court, Meyer's proposal can be added to the referendum.

Dist. 214 faces big loss of funds with unit schools

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday night voted unanimously to oppose any effort by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to form a unit district.

The board learned Monday night that the district stands to lose about $1.5 million a year in state aid if a Dist. 59 unit district is formed. Administrators also told the board Monday they could not see "any advantages" for Dist. 214 if a unit district is formed.

Dist. 59 is in the midst of studying converting to a unit district in which one administration and school board would govern elementary and high schools. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in Dist. 214.

ACCORDING TO figures reviewed by the Dist. 214 board, the high school district would lose about 42 per cent of its tax base, about 27 per cent of its students and about $8 million in assets if a unit district were formed.

"I don't come up with any advantages for Dist. 214 if this (unit) district is formed," Supt. Edward Gilbert said. "We've been thinking and so far we come up dry."

Gilbert said not only would a unit district hurt them financially, but it would also cause "personnel problems."

"Most of our declining enrollment is in the remaining part of Dist. 214. We would have to decrease personnel more rapidly and in greater proportion," Gilbert said.

Board Pres. Eugene Artemenko, the only member of the Dist. 214 board from the Dist. 59 attendance area, said the impetus behind the Dist. 59 study is the "opportunity to increase their assessed valuation per student. If it were not to their (financial) benefit they wouldn't go ahead with the study."

ASSOCIATE SUPT. Robert Weber said depending on the tax rate that would be set for the unit district, Dist. 59 property owners and businesses could raise "the same amount of money at a lower tax rate" because they would have a high assessed valuation value per child.

"I haven't found any benefits (to Dist. 214) from a financial standpoint," Weber said. "Our figures show we would receive about $100 per student less in state aid and taxes than we could as we are now. That would amount to about $1.5 million less in available funds," Weber said.

Gilbert said Dist. 59 expects to have its unit district study completed by April and "we could conceivably be three months away from a hearing."

Gilbert said after the study is completed a petition to form the unit district must be presented to the county superintendent of schools, who will then hold a public hearing. A report of the hearing is sent to the state superintendent of schools who can call for a vote on the question.

"IT WOULD not serve us well to wait to come up with a decision from the Dist. 214 board on how we feel on this issue," said Artemenko. "If they think Dist. 214 doesn't care they will continue. If they think we are against it they might change their decision on this."

"This board's concern is for all of the kids in the district," Gilbert said. "We are not mad at anybody in particular. We are acting in the best interest of the whole district."

Library referendum issue before city council tonight

The Rolling Meadows City Council tonight will reconsider its Jan. 13 decision to reject a proposed Feb. 28 library referendum.

The library board has submitted an amended referendum proposal calling for a tax rate increase. Library officials, however, have dropped the second part of their original proposal, which would have asked voters to approve a $885,000 bond sale to finance an addition to the library building.

City officials will be asked to allow the library to seek voter approval of an increase of the maximum tax rate from 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation to 20 cents per $100.

Rodney Dahlin, library board president, said a Jan. 21 library tour by aldermen helped convince the city officials to reconsider the library referendum.

The two-part referendum proposal was defeated by a 6-4 council vote.

Librarian Judith Drescher Monday said she is hopeful the council now will approve the library's request to ask voters for the tax rate increase.

"We received the impression during the tour that the council did not disapprove of our request to ask for an increased tax rate as much as they opposed a bond sale," she said.

If the council approves the referendum request, the library will have time to satisfy all legal requirements for advertising the referendum before the Feb. 28 date, she added.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. at the city hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd., Rolling Meadows.

Unitarians buy Palatine library for church site

The old Palatine library will be converted into a church by the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship, which was awarded sale of the building Monday night by the Palatine Library Board.

The church group was the highest of three bidders, with a price of $138,000. The library board had set a $125,000 minimum price.

The old building, 149 N. Brookway St., has been vacant since November, when the new $1.3 million facility at 500 N. Benson St. was opened.

TWO OTHER BIDS included a $40,000 offer by Michael Bruciani and a $60,200 offer from Daniel A. Kurowski, both businessmen who sought the building for commercial use.

The church group has been trying to obtain the old library for more than two years, when plans to build a new library were first revealed. The library board last month decided to sell the old building when the village and the township each declined to pur-

Congregation members were exuberant at the announcement of the sale.

Ruppert Lovely, pastor of the church, said he expected his group to be the high bidder because the building was not being sought as an investment for a business.

"WE WANTED IT for a church and we will have to do a lot of hard work to make it what we want," the pastor said. He said the group hopes "the facility can be ready to use before Easter services in April."

The 130-member congregation has been meeting for the past 10 years at the Plum Grove Club, Palatine. Lovely said a drive probably will be started to raise funds for remodeling. He said the purchase amount already has been raised.

The pastor said he expects the new building to accommodate 200 persons, saying an increase in the membership of the congregation probably will result from the building's acquisition.

Alexian center seeks volunteers for therapy

Volunteers are needed in at least 11 areas to work on activity therapy for patients of the Niehoff Pavilion at the Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

Activity therapy is a combination of social, educational and recreational activities to help the patients readjust to community living and develop constructive use of their leisure time. Involved would be patients in the hospital's mental health, rehabilitation and alcoholic treatment units.

"Volunteers are needed very badly," said Shirley Garrison, director of public relations.

Mrs. Garrison said community orientation guides are needed to help organize tours into the community. Also needed are special-event planners, daily-living specialists to help with trips to stores and other homemaking skills, hair styling specialists, entertainers, librarians and transportation aides to provide means for traveling to activities.

THE PAVILION also is seeking specialists in arts, crafts and other special interests, a writer-producer for a monthly newsletter, movie projectionists and people to help with trips.

Mrs. Garrison said some of the needs could be filled as group projects by community service groups. The Elk Grove Junior Women's Club comes in once a month to help out, she said.

The pavilion also is seeking donations of materials. The list includes a stove, barbecue grill, hairdryer, exercise machine, popcorn popper, iron and board, sewing machine, greenhouse and fencing. For the rehabilitation unit, a station wagon, bookshelves, stereo-radio and current books, magazines and records are needed.

Persons wishing to become volunteers or donate materials should call Judy Wathen, director of volunteer services, 437-5500, ext. 582.

Mrs. Wathen said the volunteers will be sent a descriptive program and have two interviews before being accepted. A mini-orientation and six weeks of on-the-job training will follow. The amount of training will depend on the service being filled.

Dist. 59 faces program cuts, $500,000 deficit

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 faces program cuts and a deficit budget for next year, despite a tax rate increase approved by voters last fall.

After hearing financial projections for the next four years, the school board Monday discussed the need to work with a minimum $500,000 deficit next year and looked at possible program cuts to stay within this budget.

The board approved looking at a $500,000 deficit budget for the education fund next year and possible program cuts to meet this budget.

ARTHUR PERRY, district financial director, projected a deficit of as much as $2.3 million in the education fund next year, if the district faces an 8 per cent inflation rate and does not cut programs. The projection is based on expenditures of $12.3 million and revenue of about $10 million. The revenue figure includes about $1.4 million of borrowed money through tax anticipation warrants.

Perry also figured a cut in expenditures of about $200,000 for declining enrollment, and an increase of about $1.25 million in revenue, from the 25 cents per $100 valuation tax rate increase approved by the voters in September.

Perry figured the district could face an 8 per cent inflation factor, and accept a $500,000 deficit budget by cutting programs by about 3 per cent. The administration will outline the effects of this program cut for the board.

Perry projected deficits of $3.5 million for the 1977-78 school year and of $4.76 million by the 1978-79 school year, using an 8 per cent inflation factor and no program cuts.

"IN ABOUT THREE years, we'll have used up our borrowing power and will be faced with selling working cash bonds, issuing teachers orders or going to the voters for a tax increase," Perry said.

The administration has recommended that the board consider a $500,000 deficit next year, which would allow for a 4.5 per cent inflation factor and no program cuts.

"I think an 8 per cent inflation figure is more realistic," said board member Avis Wold. "If we're going to stay around a $500,000 deficit, we're going to have to face some cuts somewhere. I want to know what this means to the programs."

She said the district should "explore all alternatives, so our decision will have some accountability and credibility."

Board member Emil Bahmaier said, "I don't think we should say we can't maintain our standards" with program cuts. "We're going to have to look at our programs by their cost effectiveness."

Village tavern loses license for 30 days

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones has suspended for 30 days the liquor license of Mac & Al's Tavern, 60 N. Bothwell St., for permitting under-aged drinking.

Jones took the action last week in connection with an incident Jan. 2 when police arrested two 18-year-old youths in the tavern for drinking.

Karen Quinlan case
before N.J. top court

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Seven justices of New Jersey's highest court took up the Karen Ann Quinlan "right to die" case Monday and some indicated they might be swayed by evidence that physicians make life-or-death decisions as part of a daily routine.

Karen's parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, asked the state Supreme Court to let their daughter die "with grace and dignity." Karen has been in a coma, her life sustained by a respirator, since last April 14 when she mixed tranquilizers and alcohol at a party for a friend.

The Quinlans want the court to grant them permission to remove Karen from the respirator. In October, the Quinlans failed to persuade a lower court to support them in their plea. Her doctors had refused their request to unplug the respirator, asserting that her brain is alive and she does not meet any of the medical standards normally used to declare a person dead.

When the oral arguments concluded, the justices gave no indication of when they might hand down a decision in the case.

The Quinlans' attorney, Paul Armstrong, was peppered with a series of questions on euthanasia — mercy killing — and the possible effects of a decision that would end Karen's life.

Is it ethical, the justices asked, for a doctor and family to decide not to start life-sustaining measures when a patient is terminally ill? Should a patient, such as Karen, be kept alive for 50 years if

Moslems, Christians
retreat from Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem and Christian gunmen began withdrawing from Beirut's long-embattled streets Monday in what a Palestinian guerrilla leader said was "a real truce... the war is over."

Police said fighting was limited to shooting incidents between looters and Palestinian troops enforcing the cease-fire.

Police sources said five persons were killed, one of the lowest casualty figures for weeks in the nine-month war that killed more than 10,000 persons and wounded at least 21,000.

The joint Lebanese-Syrian-Palestinian truce committee reported the "demilitarization process" was progressing. Under the plan by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam, international highways have opened and all gunmen are to be off the streets by 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The state radio said all gunmen from both Christian and Moslem sides had withdrawn from the city by 10 p.m.

Lebanese security forces, including the army, began taking charge of roads although patrols of Palestine Liberation Army soldiers moved through western Beirut when thousands of citizens poured out of their homes to walk about in safety for the first time in months.

Palestinian guerrilla leader Zuhair Mohsen said of the Syrian-negotiated agreement between the warring factions: "This is not just another truce, but a real end to the civil war."

"The war is over," said Mohsen, head of the Syrian-backed Al Saika guerrillas. "I don't believe that anyone will be able to explode it again — not today, not tomorrow and not in the near or distant

Unitarian church buys library

The old Palatine library will be converted into a church by the Countryside Unitarian Universalist Fellowship, which was awarded sale of the building Monday night by the Palatine Library Board.

The church group was the highest of three bidders, with a price of $136,000. The library board had set a $125,000 minimum price.

The old building, 149 N. Brockway St., has been vacant since November, when the new $1.3 million facility at 500 N. Benson St. was opened.

TWO OTHER BIDS included a $40,000 offer by Michael Bruciani and a $60,200 offer from Daniel A. Kuroski, both businessmen who sought the building for commercial use.

The church group has been trying to obtain the old library for more than two years, when plans to build a new library were first revealed. The library board last month decided to sell the old building when the village and the township each declined to purchase or lease it.

Congregation members were exuberant at the announcement of the sale.

Backers of Ice
Spectrum buy
to petition parks

Supporters of a second referendum to purchase the Arlington Ice Spectrum plan to present petitions tonight to the Palatine Park District Board in support of the effort.

Bruce Anderson, president of the Palatine Amateur Hockey Assn., said more than 1,500 names have been collected and will be presented to the board. The petition drive has been under way more than a month.

The park district board has said it will consider sponsoring a second referendum on the question if enough support for the issue is raised. A referendum last June on the matter was defeated by a 2-to-1 margin.

The park district has received mixed reaction in the form of letters and phone calls regarding the proposal. Some board members have indicated a reluctance to sponsor another referendum because of expected increased costs.

The last referendum sought approval for the sale of $395,000 in general obligation bonds to finance purchase of the Spectrum, 647 Consumers Ave., Palatine.

The park board will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the Palatine Hills Golf Course, 512 W. Northwest Hwy.

Hicks Road to close for culvert work

Hicks Road between Dundee and Rand roads will be closed from Feb. 2 to May 15 while work crews install a new culvert.

The work is part of the $3.5 million improvement project along Hicks Road from Baldwin to Rand roads. The project is slated for completion later this year.

The County Dept. of Highways also has advised Palatine officials that the 10-ton load limit on Wilke Road between Northwest Highway and S. Frontage Road will be lifted.

Recent reconstruction work along Wilke Road has enabled the 10-ton limit to be removed, county highway officials said.

Youth Bureau offers
4-week parent course

A four-week course on parent effectiveness training will begin Feb. 4 at The Bridge Youth Services office, 434 E. Northwest Hwy.

The class will meet four consecutive Wednesdays for two hours, beginning at 7:30 p.m. It is open to any interested person. The class will be taught by Jana Brown, a worker at The Bridge.

To register and for more information call The Bridge, 359-7480.

Ruppert Lovely, pastor of the church, said he expected his group to be the high bidder because the building was not being sought as an investment for a business.

"WE WANTED IT for a church and we will have to do a lot of hard work to make it what we want," the pastor said. He said the group hopes the facility can be ready to use before Easter services in April.

The 130-member congregation has been meeting for the past 10 years at the Plum Grove Club, Palatine. Lovely said a drive probably will be started to raise funds for remodeling. He said the purchase amount already has been raised.

The pastor said he expects the new building to accommodate 200 persons, saying an increase in the membership of the congregation probably will result from the building's acquisition.

CONCENTRATION PAID off for Laura Bush, Palatine, and her partner John Martino, Arlington Heights. The pair captured third place in the dance category of an invitational meet sponsored by the Orbit Roller Rink, Palatine. Saturday's meet attracted 350 skaters.

House purchase is first museum move

The Palatine Bicentennial Committee expects to acquire title to a 103-year-old house next week, marking the first step toward turning the building into a historical museum.

Thomas Ahern, committee chairman, said Monday delays in closing the deal have resulted because of paperwork and legal matters. He said the committee had hoped to acquire title to the house this week but lawyers have said a more realistic target is sometime next week.

Once the deal is closed, the committee will begin organizing fund-raising events to help raise the $60,000 for purchase and renovation of the house, Ahern said.

THE HOUSE, 244 E. Palatine Rd., will be given to the Palatine Historical Society and will be maintained by the Palatine Park District.

Ahern said the committee has received $5,000 in cash and an additional $7,000 is pledged in the fund-raising drive. Individual contributions as well as donations from civic and community groups will be sought. Major contributors, including those who donate $100 or more, will be listed on a special plaque which will hang in the museum.

Several architects in the village will be contacted by the committee to ask if they would like to donate their time to develop plans for remodeling the house. The committee has set a $12,000 figure for renovation work. Ahern said architect's fees are not included.

Alexian center seeks volunteers for therapy

Volunteers are needed in at least 11 areas to work on activity therapy for patients of the Nischoff Pavilion at the Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

Activity therapy is a combination of social, educational and recreational activities to help the patients readjust to community living and develop constructive use of their leisure time. Involved would be patients in the hospital's mental health, rehabilitation and alcoholic treatment units.

"Volunteers are needed very badly," said Shirley Garrison, director of public relations.

Mrs. Garrison said community orientation guides are needed to help organize tours into the community. Also needed are special-event planners, daily-living specialists to help with trips to stores and other homemaking skills, hair styling specialists, entertainers, librarians and transportation aides to provide means for traveling to activities.

THE PAVILION also is seeking specialists in arts, crafts and other special interests, a writer-producer for a monthly newsletter, movie projectionists and people to help with trips.

Mrs. Garrison said some of the needs could be filled as group projects by community service groups. The Elk Grove Junior Women's Club comes in once a month to help out, she said.

The pavilion also is seeking donations of materials. The list includes a stove, barbecue grill, hairdryer, exercise machine, popcorn popper, iron and board, sewing machine, green, house and fencing. For the rehabilitation unit, a station wagon, bookshelves, stereo-radio and current books, magazines and records are needed.

Persons wishing to become volunteers or donate materials should call Judy Wathen, director of volunteer services, 437-5500, ext. 582.

Mrs. Wathen said the volunteers will be sent a descriptive program and have two interviews before being accepted. A mini-orientation and six weeks of on-the-job training will follow. The amount of training will depend on the service being filled.

by PAT GERLACH

"Yuk," remarked the shiny black Wolf when Red Riding Hood revealed the contents of her basket for Grandmother.

"I have some goat's cheese, spinach souffle and carrot and squash pudding," Red Riding Hood said, explaining Granny must have soft foods because she has no teeth.

Dialog between Red Riding Hood and the Wolf is an almost daily activity for two Hoffman Estates women who call themselves The Enchanted Puppeteers. Their family of hand-crafted puppets is a colorful and enchanting group.

BETTY KEIMACH and Peg Hunter travel the Northwest suburban birthday party circuit with their popular storybook characters and make special appearances at local schools.

They began a 10-week puppetry class Saturday sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Park District.

In classes for 8 to 10-year-olds, the women will begin with puppetmaking, proceed to script writing and prop creation. The end result, they say, will be a complete class production before an audience.

Also being offered is an adult class in puppetmaking using a variety of materials.

The women have been working together since fall and have perfected two productions. They perform Red Riding Hood for 4-year-olds and Aladdin for older children.

BETTY SAYS that like many British children she grew up with puppets and later used puppetry to "help develop communications skills and self-expression" in many of the shy and inhibited children she taught in London's East End slum schools.

But puppetry is a new discovery for Peg, who has a political science background.

"It's really marvelous I've found that our puppets really tap a new source in me and so many of the children we work with," Peg says.

The Enchanted Puppeteers were created soon after the women met on the tennis court of their Country Knoll apartment complex several months ago.

Since then it has been hard work and long hours of rehearsal, puppetmaking and script writing.

"I've learned so much from Peg, even though she has not had the years of experience with puppets, she is so good with words, so very creative," Betty says, adding that Peg's "business sense" helps the venture immensely.

PEG BELIEVES Betty's art and drama background, coupled with her teaching experience, is largely responsible for the success of The Enchanted Puppeteers.

The women consider the wolf from Red Riding Hood and a genie used in PEG HUNTER has done "marvelous" things with the Wolf, says her partner Betty Keimach who portrays Red Riding Hood. The Hoffman Estates women call themselves The Enchanted Puppeteers and are available for children's parties and school presentations. They have begun teaching puppetry for the Hoffman Estates Park District's winter recreation program.

Aladdin their "most effective puppets."

They point out that the half-hour productions are exhilarating but exhausting. "Manipulating the groups of puppets, carrying on the dialog and using the props really takes a lot of energy," Betty said.

The team always likes to involve their audience with the puppets following a production.

"If we have a very large group, we don't attempt it, though, because we believe it is unfair to the children if each cannot have a personal experience with the puppet character," Peg says.

As the women talk, they seem unaware of the puppets each is using in conversation.

"Having a puppet on our hands is just second nature. We probably wouldn't feel complete without one," Peg says.

Bridge seeks volunteers

The Bridge Youth Services Bureau is seeking volunteers to work in a new youth development program. Couples or teams of two who are 20 or older are being sought for the program, which will focus on working with small groups of adolescents.

Training will be provided, and volunteers will be asked to attend meetings twice a month.

Interviews will be conducted through Feb. 13. For an appointment and more information call Rick Atwater, 359-7490.

Library book sale Feb. 11

The Friends of the Library will sponsor its annual winter book sale Feb. 11 at the Palatine Public Library, 500 N. Benton St. The sale will be from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Books, sheet music and records will be sold. Money raised from the event will be used to purchase the Bicentennial Collection of American History books.

Persons who wish to donate books for the sale may drop them off at the library.

Village tavern loses license for 30 days

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones has suspended for 30 days the liquor license of Mac & Al's Tavern, 80 N. Bothwell St., for permitting under-aged drinking.

Jones took the action last week in connection with an incident Jan. 2 when police arrested two 18-year-old youths in the tavern for drinking.

Parks set planetarium trip

The Palatine Park District will sponsor a trip to the Adler Planetarium Feb. 8. Cost of the trip is $3 for adults and $2.50 for children. The fee includes transportation but not lunch.

A bus for the trip will leave Community Park at 11 a.m. and return at 5 p.m.

For more information call 359-0333.

Holy Resurrection Orthodox Church of Palatine will sponsor a dinner-dance Feb. 14 at the Plum Grove Club, 400 Park Dr.

The affair will begin at 6 p.m. Donation is $10 and will be used to benefit the building fund of the church.

Saint Thomas of Villanova

Parents of present and future St. Thomas of Villanova School students are invited to find out what is taught in the school, how it is taught and why at open house sessions Wednesday, Thursday and Feb. 4 at the school, 1141 E. Anderson Dr., Palatine.

St. Thomas uses individualized instruction, team teaching and multiage grouping of children in their nongraded learning approach. The teaching methods and curriculum of the school will be explained at each session.

Parents of intermediate students, grades 4, 5 and 6, are invited to Wednesday session. The Thursday session is geared to parents of primary students, grades 1, 2 and 3. Parents of junior high students are asked to attend the Feb. 4 session. All sessions begin at 7:30 p.m.

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15

"200 Years in 60 Minutes, A Walk Through Time with Salk" is the title of Salk School's student Bicentennial play at 7 p.m. today in the school cafeteria, 3705 Pheasant Dr., Rolling Meadows.

Students in first through sixth grades have designed the scenery, signs, props and programs, and will handle the lighting and serve as ushers. Students from all grades will take part in the program, some portraying important characters and events in our nation's history.

Parents are also invited to visit the Betsy Ross bake sale following the play.

A science fair will be held Thursday at Sandburg School, 2600 Martin Ln., Rolling Meadows. Awards will be presented in the school cafeteria at 7:30 p.m., followed by an open house.

High School Dist. 211

An educational seminar in adolescent behavior is being offered to all parents of Conant High School students Thursdays from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Conant, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates. Topics of discussion will include skills for effective communication, dynamics of adolescent behavior and parent-teen-ager relationships. For further information, contact Julie Malen, social worker, at 885-4366 ext. 19.

Scholarships

High school seniors in the top quarter of their graduating classes can participate in the National College of Education's second competitive scholarship weekend Friday and Saturday. Three full-tuition and 30 partial-tuition scholarships, all for four years, will be awarded.

To apply for a competitive scholarship or learn more about the program, write or call Douglas Paul, associate director of admissions, National College of Education, 2840 Sheridan Rd., Evanston, 60201, 256-5150, ext. 50.

TRENTON, N.J., (UPI) — Seven justices of New Jersey's highest court took up the Karen Ann Quinlan "right to die" case Monday and some indicated they might be swayed by evidence that physicians make life-or-death decisions as part of a daily routine.

Karen's parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, asked the state Supreme Court to let their daughter die "with grace and dignity." Karen has been in a coma, her life sustained by a respirator, since last April 14 when she mixed tranquilizers and alcohol at a party for a friend.

Moslems, Christians retreat from Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem and Christian gunmen began withdrawing from Beirut's long-embattled streets Monday in what a Palestinian guerrilla leader said was "a real truce . . . the war is over."

Police said fighting was limited to shooting incidents between looters and Palestinian troops enforcing the cease-fire.

Police sources said five persons were killed, one of the lowest casualty figures for weeks in the nine-month war that killed more than 10,000 persons and wounded at least 21,000.

The joint Lebanese-Syrian-Palestinian truce committee reported the "demilitarization process" was progressing. Under the plan by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam, international highways have opened and all gunmen are to be off the streets by 6 p.m. Tuesday.

The state radio said all gunmen from both Christian and Moslem sides had withdrawn from the city by 10 p.m.

To solve budget problems

Trustees back trash pickup fee

by LYNN ASINOF

A residential garbage collection fee ranging from $3 to $4.25 a month has the support of most Mount Prospect Village Board members as a solution to current budget problems.

Village officials now estimate a $400,000 deficit in 1976-77 unless new sources of revenue are found.

Garbage collection is currently financed with funds from village taxes. A separate assessment would mean village residents will pay more next year for the service they now receive.

Four of seven board members support a separate garbage fee ranging from $3 to $4.25. The fee will help cover the anticipated deficit, and several board members say it also will cover proposed employee pay hikes.

THE PROPOSALS were outlined in a series of memos to be considered at a special budget session tonight. Trustee Richard N. Hendricks is the only board member who has not yet made a recommendation.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert is advocating a $4.25 charge to residential users, saying this will free the $863,000 already levied for garbage collection. He said that with a 6 per cent employee pay hike, this would give the village about a $100,000 cash balance as a financial cushion.

"A direct garbage charge would put us in the same position as other communities which have long recognized the impossibility of providing this particular service through a tax levy," Teichert said. "Even with a direct garbage charge and our existing tax levy, we would still be one of the lowest taxing communities in the north-west area."

TRUSTEE THEODORE A. Wattenberg called for a $4 fee to solve immediate financial problems. He said, however, the village should consider hiking property taxes to cover garbage collection costs, allowing residents to write off the fee on their federal income tax.

Others favoring a garbage collection fee include Trustee Michael H. Minton, who recommended a $4.25 charge, and Trustee E. F. Richardson, who called for a $3 fee.

Establishment of a garbage collection fee would also end a long-standing complaint of the business community. Although all property owners are taxed 30.16 cents per $100 assessed valuation, for scavenger service, the village only pays for residential garbage collection.

OTHER PROPOSALS to raise revenue include increases in the business license fees, ranging from a 25 per cent hike to doubling the present fee schedule.

A real estate transfer tax of $1 per thousand dollars assessed valuation was endorsed by Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr., with Minton and Trustee Leo Floros backing a similar tax.

Minton also called for an apartment licensing fee estimated to produce $130,500 for the village.

The budget recommendations will be discussed tonight beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the village hall, 100 S. Emerson St.

Omni-House needs foster parents

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, Wheeling, is seeking adults to serve as foster parents for teen-age wards of the state in the Northwest suburbs.

For further information call Michele Williams, child welfare director, 541-0190.

Worker pay hikes favored, despite financial woes

A majority of Mount Prospect Village Board members favor employee pay hikes of 5 to 6 per cent, despite village financial problems.

Four of seven village board members called for pay hikes while three of the four endorsed budget cuts that will eliminate present village services. The proposals are outlined in a series of memos to be discussed at a special budget session tonight.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert, Trustees E. F. Richardson and Theodore J. Wattenberg all called for 6 per cent pay hikes at a cost of about $255,000. Trustee Leo Floros backed a 5 per cent hike for those employees who do not currently get step increases.

ONE TRUSTEE, however, called for the layoff of eight employees. Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr. said the village could "continue to provide the same general level of services with perhaps some slippage in efficiency with their elimination."

Richardson also hinted at layoffs by calling for $209,640 in "other possible department adjustments." He declined to outline these adjustments, but said they dealt with personnel.

Rhea also said he is opposed to any employee pay hikes or increased fringe benefits. Noting statistics on the village pay scale, Rhea said Mount Prospect is in the top 10 in base salaries and top five in fringe benefits when compared to 30 suburban communities and Chicago.

"I BELIEVE it is time to let the rest of the area catch up," he said.

Although Floros called for 5 per cent pay hikes, he also endorsed $370,200 in budget cuts. They include the elimination of sick leave benefits, a decrease in hospitalization coverage and dropping improvements to the village hall parking lot.

Most of Floros' proposed cuts, however, are listed as general reductions at the discretion of the department head. This could include layoffs.

A majority of board members called for dropping proposed water main replacements and a new well from the budget.

MAYOR Robert D. Teichert, however, said he still wants to see a pumping station installed at the Old Orchard Country Club site. He said he is willing to cut $200,000 from the $300,000 requested for well repairs.

"This is a calculated risk area, but one that can be diminished in effect by a stringent water regulation, should a crisis occur," Teichert said.

Rhea said well repairs and water main replacements totalling some $775,000 should be covered by a revenue bond issue. Richardson said a five-year bank loan should be taken to cover the repairs, with main replacement staged over a five-year period.

Dist. 214 vote opposes '59' unit plan

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday night voted unanimously to oppose any effort by Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 to form a unit district.

The board learned Monday night that the district stands to lose about $1.5 million a year in state aid if a Dist. 59 unit district is formed. Administrators also told the board Monday they could not see "any advantages" for Dist. 214 if a unit district is formed.

Dist. 59 is in the midst of studying converting to a unit district in which one administration and school board would govern elementary and high schools. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in Dist. 214.

ACCORDING TO figures reviewed by the Dist. 214 board, the high school district would lose about 42 per cent of its tax base, about 27 per cent of its students and about $6 million in assets if a unit district were formed.

"I don't come up with any advantages for Dist. 214 if this (unit) district is formed," Supt. Edward Gilbert said. "We've been thinking and so far we come up dry."

Gilbert said not only would a unit district hurt them financially, but it would also cause "personnel problems."

"Most of our declining enrollment is in the remaining part of Dist. 214. We would have to decrease personnel more rapidly and in greater proportion," Gilbert said.

Board Pres. Eugene Artemenko, the only member of the Dist. 214 board from the Dist. 59 attendance area, said the impetus behind the Dist. 59 study is the "opportunity to increase their assessed valuation per student. If it were not to their (financial) benefit they wouldn't go ahead with the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 faces program cuts and a deficit budget for next year, despite a tax rate increase approved by voters last fall.

Dist. 59 faces $500,000 deficit

After hearing financial projections for the next four years, the school board Monday discussed the need to work with a minimum $500,000 deficit next year and looked at possible program cuts to stay within this budget.

The board approved looking at a $500,000 deficit budget for the education fund next year and possible program cuts to meet this budget.

ARTHUR PERRY, district financial director, projected a deficit of as much as $2.3 million in the education fund next year, if the district faces an 8 per cent inflation rate and does not cut programs. The projection is based on expenditures of $12.3 million and revenue of about $10 million. The revenue figure includes about $1.4 million of borrowed money through tax anticipation warrants.

Perry also figured a cut in expenditures of about $200,000 for declining enrollment, and an increase of about $1.25 million in revenue, from the 25 cents per $100 valuation tax rate increase approved by the voters in September.

Perry figured the district could face an 8 per cent inflation factor, and accept a $500,000 deficit budget by cutting programs by about 3 per cent. The administration will outline the effects of this program cut for the board.

Perry projected deficits of $3.5 million for the 1977-78 school year and of $4.76 million by the 1978-79 school year, using an 8 per cent inflation factor and no program cuts.

"IN ABOUT THREE years, we'll have used up our borrowing power and will be faced with selling working cash bonds, issuing teachers orders or going to the voters for a tax increase," Perry said.

The administration has recommended that the board consider a $500,000 deficit next year, which would allow for a 4.5 per cent inflation factor and no program cuts.

"I think an 8 per cent inflation figure is more realistic," said board member Avis Wold. "If we're going to stay around a $500,000 deficit, we're going to have to face some cuts somewhere. I want to know what this means to the programs."

She said the district should "explore all alternatives, so our decision will have some accountability and credibility."

Board member Emil Bannmaier said, "I don't think we should say we can't maintain our standards" with program cuts. "We're going to have to look at our programs by their cost effectiveness."

City vote debate scheduled tonight

Residents of the Quincy Park quadrangle apartment complex and Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. officials will meet today at 7:30 p.m. to debate the proposed incorporation of Prospect Heights.

The meeting will be held at the Stevenson Elementary School, 1375 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling.

PHIA is supporting Saturday's incorporation referendum.

Some residents of Quincy Park, located on Old Willow Road just east of Wolf Road, have voiced their objections to incorporation, fearing it will lead to higher taxes.

A group of about 15 Quincy Park residents distributed leaflets over the weekend to residents of nearby apartment complexes and to Sunday churchgoers in an effort to encourage a negative vote, said Sandra Glody of Quincy Park.

The citizens' group also plans mailings this week to about 2,000 homeowners in Prospect Heights "to encourage them to vote 'no' on Saturday," she said.

"We just believe that incorporation will eventually mean more taxes and higher rents for those who live in apartments. No one wants to face that fact now, but increased taxes are inevitable," Mrs. Glody said.

The proposed incorporation boundaries are Sanders Road on the east, Windsor Drive on the west, Hintz Road on the north and Euclid Avenue on the south.

$1,180 in cash, jewels taken in home burglary

Some $1,180 in cash and jewels were stolen when burglars entered the home of Helene Enzenbacher, 695 Belaire Ln., Mount Prospect, police said Monday.

There were no signs of forced entry but police said the burglars entered through an unlocked patio door.

The stolen jewels included a necklace, earrings and a bracelet. Four bedrooms were also ransacked, police said.

Burglars also stole $28 in cash from Linda Z's Bernina Sewing Center in the Mount Prospect Plaza, Rand and Central roads, police said Monday.

A store manager discovered the break-in Monday morning.

Burglars also tried unsuccessfully to break into three other stores and an office at the shopping center, but nothing was reported stolen.

A major water main replacement program costing an estimated $475,000 is part of Mount Prospect's proposed public works budget for 1976-77.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said some sections of pipe are in such bad shape "that you can scratch through them with your fingernail." He said even if the mains are not replaced immediately, the village board should be aware of impending problems in this area.

In his budget proposal to the village board, Public Works Director David L. Creamer said current cash flow problems make it unlikely the main replacement will be done in the near future.

"THESE ITEMS had been listed on projected reports as work to be done, and somehow other priorities always seem to take precedence," Creamer said.

Areas affected by the water main replacement program include:

- Weller Lane south of Central Road where the existing cast iron main is deteriorating because of corrosive soil conditions. A larger main would be installed for an estimated $50,000.

- Council Trail between Elmhurst Road and Hi-Lusi Avenue where a former peat bog is creating corrosive soil conditions. Estimated replacement cost is $50,000.

- Hatlen Avenue between Michael and Lincoln streets. Near the intersection of Hatlen Court and Hatlen Avenue, a peat bog was not removed when the present main was installed. Replacement cost is estimated at $30,000.

- Forest Avenue between Memory Lane and Highland Street, which is also a peat bog area. Estimated cost is $60,000.

- School Street, where two alternative proposals are being studied. One would run from Central Road to Busse Avenue with the other running from Rand Road to Evergreen Avenue.

study." ASSOCIATE SUPT. Robert Weber said depending on the tax rate that would be set for the unit district, Dist. 59 property owners and businesses could raise "the same amount of money at a lower tax rate" because they would have a high assessed valuation value per child.

"I haven't found any benefits (to Dist. 214) from a financial standpoint," Weber said. "Our figures show we would receive about $100 per student less in state aid and taxes than we could as we are now. That would amount to about $1.5 million less in available funds," Weber said.

Gilbert said Dist. 59 expects to have its unit district study completed by April and "we could conceivably be three months away from a hearing."

Gilbert said after the study is completed a petition to form the unit district must be presented to the county superintendent of schools, who will then hold a public hearing. A report of the hearing is sent to the state superintendent of schools, who can call for a vote on the question.

"IT WOULD not serve us well to wait to come up with a decision from the Dist. 214 board on how we feel on this issue," said Artemenko. "If they think Dist. 214 doesn't care they will continue. If they think we are against it they might change their decision on this."
